Judge Traver Presides as January Term Opens At County Court House

Eight Jurors Were Excused—Calendar Opens Wednesday Morning at 10 o'clock—Case of Joseph Realmuto and James Hicks Disposed of by Court.

The January term of County Court opened Monday afternoon, with Judge Traver presiding. The call of the jury men showed all present but Jacob Baumer of Shawangunk, who is ill. Eight jurors presented acceptable excuses and were excused. They were: John Burns, Sr., Kingston; Marvin J. Clark, Wawarsing; Robert Clark, Esopus; Maurice Crysler, Esopus; Preston Davis, Wawarsing; Martin Lee DuBois, New Paltz; Daniel A. O'Mara, Kingston; Norman Rickert, Shandaken. Harold Eignor of Shandaken holds an exempt fireman's certificate and his name was ordered removed from the jury list.

The calendar was called and the following day calendar was made up for Wednesday morning, January 10: Cases Nos. 7, 18, 91, 43, 153, 541, 35. The jurymen were excused till 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Assistant District Attorney N. LeVan Haver then moved the following cases:

Joseph Realmuto, Highland, pleaded guilty to assault. He was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory, but execution of judgment was suspended during good behavior, he to continue to report to R. J. Service, probation officer. Realmuto was represented by George Rusk.

Lawrence Wilbur of Woodstock, charged with carrying a dangerous weapon. Case adjourned for two weeks.

James J. Kearney, Kingston, charged with abandonment and failure to provide for children, pleaded not guilty. Nicholas J. Fowler was assigned as counsel.

Walter Melechowitz, Rondout, charged with burglary in the third degree and unlawful entry, pleaded not guilty. His bail was continued and Roger Loughran was assigned as counsel. Walter is charged with having broken into Planthaber's store and being implicated in the stealing of a canoe from the Rondout Yacht Club property. Robert Dugan, who was also charged with being connected with the thefts, was recently sent to industry.

Ralph Decker of Port Ewen, charged with abandonment, pleaded not guilty. William D. Brinnier is his attorney.

Frank W. Brooks, attorney for Richard Barley of the town of Esopus, charged with rape, asked for a bill of particulars. The request was granted with the exception of one particular.

In the case of George L. Dawes, charged with abandonment, judgment was suspended and the case continued till April 2, defendant to continue to report to the probation officer.

Palmer Canfield appeared for James Hicks, charged with abandonment and asked for an extension of time. Hicks' face is not a new one in county court. The judge gave him two weeks in which to make good on his payments.

Mr. Canfield also appeared for George Atkins in a plea for modification of sentence. The judge reserved decision.

Ulster Agricultural Society Officers

Directors of the Ulster County Agricultural Society met at the office of the secretary, E. W. Hathaway, Kingston, Monday night and elected officers as follows:

Fred DuBois, New Paltz, president.

E. Gordon Jansen, Ellenville 1st vice-president.

John H. Beatty, Kingston, 2d vice-president.

The president and secretary were elected representatives to the meeting of delegates from the various agricultural societies of the state, to be held at the Ten Eyck Hotel, Albany, February 20.

The county-wide meeting of those interested in the agricultural welfare of the county will be held at New Paltz February 22. At this meeting definite plans will be considered for the conduct of the annual fair to be held in Kingston next fall.

Travis Whitney Dies.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Travis Harvard Whitney's work as civil works administrator for New York city was terminated by his death last night. The strain of overwork in placing 180,000 men and women in government jobs which had occupied his days and nights since his appointment December 5 aggravated a stomach ailment from which he had suffered many years. He collapsed at his desk Saturday morning and was operated upon at Post Graduate Hospital. Pneumonia followed and he died last night at 58 years of age.

Flying Boat to Rio

Natal, Brazil, Jan. 9 (AP).—The French mail seaplane Southern Cross, which arrived here last Thursday after a transatlantic flight from Senegal, hopped early today for Rio De Janeiro.

McGinnies Declares Old Guard Will Stand With F.W. Hammond

Talk of Break in Ranks Speaker Declares Is "A Lot of Nonsense"—Anti-Hammond Men Determined to Make All Votes Count.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP).—Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies today declared that the "Old Guard" wing of the Republican party would continue to support Fred W. Hammond for the clerkship of the Assembly regardless of the delay of the Assembly's business caused by the deadlock.

He said Hammond still had 65 votes, counting Assemblyman James J. Wadsworth, who was absent.

"All this talk about a break in our ranks is a lot of nonsense," he continued. "It has failed to materialize so far."

The 64 GOP assemblymen, who attended the conference, immediately went back to the Assembly chamber to resume balloting. While they discussed their course of action behind closed doors, the 19 anti-Hammond men waited outside.

Some of them were angry because all Republican assemblymen were not invited to the conference.

"Speaker McGinnies should remember that he needs 76 votes to pass any legislation," one man said. "We are still Republicans, but not Fred Hammond Republicans."

CLAIR ARRESTED CHARGED WITH SELLING LIQUOR

Jack Clair of Chambers street, was arrested Monday afternoon by the police on a warrant sworn out by Chief of Police J. Allan Wood charging Clair with selling liquor without first having obtained a license from the Alcoholic Control Board. According to information attached to the warrant Clair is charged with selling George Foster, a negro, some gin. Foster is now serving five days in the county jail for public intoxication. Clair told Judge Culloton this morning that he did not have a drop of liquor in his place, and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. The hearing was adjourned to Thursday morning.

Chauncey Coumbes of 27 Murray street was arrested on Railroad avenue Monday by LeRoy J. Smith, who charged Coumbes with reckless driving. This morning the hearing was held open for three weeks as Smith told the court that there was an adjustment pending in the matter.

Governor to Meet Dairymen

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP).—Governor Lehman announced today he would appear personally at 1:20 p. m. before more than 1,500 milk farmers gathered to discuss with the state milk board a plan for cooperating with New Jersey farmers to keep up milk prices. "I think I shall have something important to say," the governor said.

Gold Price Still $34.06.

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—The government maintained its domestic gold price today at $34.06 an ounce. A stronger dollar abroad failed to prompt a boost in the RFC offer which now has been repeated for 16 business days. Sterling open in London at $5.05½. At this level, bar gold was worth $32.22 an ounce.

Charge Police Killed Stavisky

Paris, Jan. 9 (AP).—Huge forces of mounted and foot police surrounded the Chamber of Deputies today to guard against a demonstration resulting from reports that police had killed Serge Stavisky, alleged swindler, to keep him from talking.

Authoress Dies.

Davenport, Iowa, Jan. 9 (AP).—Miss Alice French, author, who wrote many novels under the pen name of "Octave Thanet," died at her home early today after a long illness. She would have been 84 in March.

More Women in Mexico.

Mexico, D. F., Jan. 9 (AP).—The population of Mexico is 16,552,722, the department of national economy announced today. Women slightly outnumber men by 8,432,718 to 8,119,004.

Lehman to Meet Mayor of New York Tomorrow

Governor Promises La Guardia He'll Hold Self in Readiness for Conference—Will Endeavor to Work Out Way to Settle Problem.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP).—Governor Lehman and Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, who have been waging a friendly but determined battle over the mayor's proposal for broad power in financial matters, will seek to arrive at an agreement at a conference tomorrow.

The governor in a letter last night reaffirmed "without qualification" his opposition to La Guardia's plans, but left the way open for broad powers to be divided between the mayor and the board of estimate.

He invited the mayor and his associates to visit him in Albany. Today he heard that the mayor would be able to come tomorrow.

Mayor La Guardia, in response to a renewal over the telephone by the governor of his invitation to come here for a conference, said he would arrive in Albany between 11 and 11:40 a. m. tomorrow.

"I told him I would hold myself in readiness for him at any time," the governor said.

"I repeat," he declared after his telephone conversation, "that while I am opposed to giving any official tremendously broad and dictatorial powers which the mayor asks for, I shall do everything possible within my power to cooperate with him and other officials in anything and everything which is of benefit to the city."

The governor declared the aim of the meeting is "to help in any way we can in what I believe a most important problem."

River Steamers Are Still Running

Encountering Heavy Ice Between Catskill and Kingston—Hudson River Steamboat Company Operating Hudson River Night Line—Ferries Still Tied Up.

The soft spell of the past few days has caused the ice fields in the Hudson river to shift and as a result the river steamers of the Hudson River Steamboat Company are encountering heavy going between Kingston and Albany, but are still continuing operations between Albany and New York, and will continue until stopped by the ice.

The river ferries between Kingston and Albany are tied up by ice conditions and are not operating. The ferry Transport here has not been running since the last of the year.

The Hudson River Steamboat Company has been authorized by a federal court order in New York to take over operation of the Hudson River Night Line. The contract for the McAllister Company, lessee of the Hudson River Night Line, was cancelled when receivers for the Night Line complained that rentals for November 1, December 1, and January 1 had not been settled.

The business of the Night Line and the Hudson River Steamboat Company is being handled by the steamers Odell and Poughkeepsie during the winter months.

Nun Dead of Injuries.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP).—Sister Mary Laurentine, one of four nuns from the Mt. St. Clair Convent at New Hamburgh, injured in an automobile accident Sunday, is dead, and Sister Claude Marie lies in a critical condition today as a result of her injuries. They were passengers in a car driven by Michael Tersone of this city which was involved in a collision with a milk truck operated by Raymond McDermott of Theresa. The latter was arrested.

Insull Opening Seen.

Ankara, Turkey, Jan. 9 (AP).—An opportunity for Samuel Insull, former American utilities operator, to seek refuge in Turkey was left open today. Parliament adjourned without ratifying an extradition treaty with the United States and will not reconvene until March 1. Insull has been ordered by the Greek government to leave Athens January 21.

A.H. Mambert Resigns Home Physician Post. Successor Is Named

Chief of Staff at Industrial Home Since 1915 Surrenders Duties After 19 Years of Gratuitous Service—Board of Managers Expresses Regret—Present Medical Staff.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the Industrial Home, held at "The Home" on January 8, the following letter of resignation was received from A. H. Mambert, M. D.

January 8, 1934

To the President, Board and Trustees, Industrial Home, Kingston, N. Y.

In 1915 after the resignation of the Home Physician, Miss Van Leuven, president, and Miss Shufeldt, corresponding secretary, requested me to take that position. My reply was that I wished to avoid additional duties; and also I dislike the way the Board was conducting the Medical department. If they would consent to my appointing a staff to divide the work, I will take the position if the Board wishes. They returned, and the Board thought it a fine idea and would have their approval. I simply wish to say that we have had pleasant and harmonious relations, and the Staff also has been attentive to its duties, and deserve praise. The work has been easy for me on account of the capable and faithful staff and at no time been unpleasant, if my memory serves me right.

My observation has proved to me that the children receive fine care in every way, and that if they remain a sufficient length of time, leave in better physical, mental and spiritual condition than on admission. The Home Hospital and Quarantine Cottage are also a fine part of the Institution, particularly as they provide for the segregation and care, apart from the well. We have had only one death in the 18 years and that from diphtheria during an epidemic. In 1920 Dr. Norwood (who was on that month) and myself, gave the Schick Test, or Toxin-Antitoxin, to all inmates except two who refused, and a child ill at the time. Since the epidemic we have had but one case, and that was the one sick at the time with vaicella. A few weeks later she brought diphtheria from No. 5 school, was very ill but recovered. We have been giving toxin-autitoxin to all new admissions since, and it was up to myself to do this, and the staff members showed a reluctance to do it, and the health officer refused to do it. This continued until the health board commenced to give this preventive treatment, which relieved me. There is no doubt that we are all well pleased with Dr. Cragin and his staff for taking care of the children's teeth. We have had many minor surgical operations, all successful, and many mastoid operations; these latter also successful.

We are all well pleased, of course, that the children leave "Our Home" in excellent condition, and that we have such an excellent and benevolent institution in our city.

Pardon me for taking your time, but I have desired to express a few things, at the same time that I hand you this paper which conveys my resignation as chief of staff.

A. H. MAMBERT, M. D.

Board Expresses Regret

The resignation of Dr. Mambert was accepted by the board of managers with deep regret, each member feeling that he cannot find words to express his gratitude and deep appreciation to Dr. Mambert for his conscientious and faithful service to the children of "The Home" during the past 18 years without remuneration of any description. The doctors appointed in 1915 by Dr. Mambert to serve for two months each were: Dr. Norwood, Dr. Gillette, Dr. Frank Keator, Dr. Vrooman, Dr. Daniel Connelly and Dr. A. A. Stern. Dr. Stern is a member of the present staff, the others having died.

The board is to be congratulated that Dr. H. L. Van Norstrand has accepted the position of house physician and chief of the medical staff, the position made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Mambert.

The physicians composing the present medical staff, each doctor serving for one month, are as follows: H. L. Van Norstrand, M. D., chief of staff; Dr. Henry L. Bibby, Dr. Frank L. Eastman; Dr. F. W. Holcomb; Dr. O. D. B. Ingalls, Dr. Mark O'Meara, Dr. A. A. Stern, Dr. Joseph Jacobson, Dr. John Krom, Dr. J. F. Larkin, Dr. Douw S. Myers, Dr. L. E. Sanford, Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeck; specialists, Dr. W. J. Cranston, Dr. Edwin C. Fassett, Dr. A. C. Gates, Dr. Harold A. Wilson. Each specialist serves for three months. Consultant—nervous and mental diseases, Dr. A. S. Keefe; dental staff, Dr. C. B. Cragin, chief of staff; Dr. A. M. Cragin, Dr. C. D. Carter, Dr. E. D. Chipp, Dr. Julius L. Gifford, Dr. Julian L. Gifford, Dr. A. L. Hill, Dr. E. E. Henry, Dr. T. Hampson Jones, Dr. H. Meinhardt, Dr. S. D. Wolff; optometrists, S. S. Stern, H. R. LeFever.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—The position of the Treasury January 6 was: Receipts, $12,183,309.56; expenditures, $64,291,527.47; balance, $502,697,458.36; customs receipts for the month, $5,857,238.01. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) were $1,528,781,795.27; expenditures, $2,921,009,424.87 including $1,392,644,068.27 emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,392,227,629.60.

Kingston Taxpayers' Slim Gathering Causes Election Adjournment

President Jay Terry Waited Until 8:30 at Monday Night's Meeting and Only 21 Appeared—New Schedule of Officers Presented for Voting on January 15—Budget Committee and Common Council.

Although President Jay Terry waited until nearly 8:30 before he called the annual meeting of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association to order Monday evening, but 21 were present when his gavel sounded. Because of the small attendance the election of officers was not held and the meeting, after a brief discussion, adjourned one week to Monday evening January 15.

Following the reading of the minutes, Elmer E. Swart called attention to a motion he had made at the last regular meeting, providing that the budget committee should make a study of the proposed budget, and that a special meeting of the association should be called to consider any recommendations that it might be found desirable to make to the common council. It turned out that this had not been done and Mr. Swart wanted it understood that the association was not responsible for any representations made or positions taken at the budget hearing before the council, that no one had been given any authority or power to represent the association on that occasion. Mrs. Church stated that she had lost three prospective new members because they were dissatisfied with certain recommendations made at the budget hearing and which they supposed represented the position of the association.

The secretary stated that remarks he had made at the council meeting were made on his own initiative, that he had not claimed to represent the association and that the press had not stated that he represented the association. Mr. Richter also made the same statement.

Mr. Terry made a brief report on his actions as president the past year. He stated that he had tried to represent the association at all meetings, whenever possible, and to the best of his ability. He had found, however, particularly of late, that so much relief work was hurting the work of the association and that it was difficult to get taxpayers to give much consideration to affairs in which they should be keenly interested.

Elmer E. Swart, chairman of the nominating committee, then presented a list of recommendations for officers for the coming year. The committee made the following suggestions: Edward P. Ward or Palmer Canfield, president; E. M. Hicks, vice president; Mrs. F. D. Church, treasurer; Andrew Ferguson, secretary; Mrs. A. Clearwater, financial secretary; Jay Terry, S. C. Schultz, A. J. Burns, Mrs. Adele Bregman, Fred Richter, executive committee.

Peter C. Fisher suggested that because of the small attendance consideration of the nominations be laid over till the next meeting, and on motion the meeting was adjourned for one week, at which time officers will be elected.

Dolan's Condition Reported as Good

The condition of Leo Dolan, 34, of Hunter, who was shot twice by Deputy Sheriff Fred Groene during an argument at the Hurley Hotel early Sunday morning, is reported today as good at the Kingston Hospital where he was taken after the shooting. Deputy Sheriff Groene's condition is reported as fair. He was severely injured in the scuffle which took place when he entered the place where it is said an argument was in progress. It is alleged that when Groene entered the place he was attacked and beaten and during the affair he fired his gun twice, both shots striking Dolan.

An investigation into the affair is being conducted by Sheriff Saxe and also by District Attorney Cleon H. Murray's office.

Warshawsky Held.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—Fire officials opened an investigation today into a blaze that swept through a big State street automobile accessories warehouse and for a while threatened the neighborhood, and ordered Israel Warshawsky, head of the firm, to appear for questioning. Warshawsky, son-in-law of Morris Eller, former city collector and west side political boss, was present last night as a third of the city's fire fighting equipment fought to bring the blaze under control.

President Prepares Message.

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt devoted himself today to the preparation of messages to Congress proposing immediate consideration of the St. Lawrence waterways pact and a federal guarantee of the principal of the $2,000,000,000 in farm credit bonds. All but the most necessary engagements were cancelled to get these two pieces into the congressional machine.

Douglas to Stick.

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, made clear today he intends to remain in his present office despite rumors that budgetary differences with President Roosevelt and a recent curtailment of his authorities might cause him to resign. The budget director told newsmen he plans to "remain on the job as long as I can render service."

Ulster County Auditor And Purchasing Agent Appointed By The Board Of Supervisors

Ray LeFever of Marbletown Named To Newly Appointed Position at a Salary of $1,500 and Travel Expenses—County Commissioner of Public Welfare Placed Under Jurisdiction of County Auditor—Committee of Three Members of Board Will Check on Auditor Without Expenses or Salary—Committee on Purchase of Rights of Way Reduced From 6 to 4 Members.

An Ulster county auditor and purchasing agent was appointed by the board of supervisors at the Monday afternoon session at a salary of $1,500 and travel expenses to replace the auditing committee of three members of the board as has been the custom for many years. The Democratic members of the board were for the creation of the new office, claiming that a recent examination into Ulster county's business by examiners from the state comptroller's office had resulted in the condemning of the old method of appointing three members from the board to the committee at annual salaries of $500 each. The Republican supervisors held that the practice of past years was legal in spite of what the comptroller's examiners might say in their report. The Republican supervisors held that the board should have control of the auditing of bills and the purchase of supplies rather than delegate that power to one man outside the board. In addition the County Commissioner of Public Welfare is placed under the jurisdiction of this county auditor and all county officials may occupy only such office as the auditor designates and approves.

Ray LeFever of Marbletown was appointed to the newly created position by a vote of 21 to 12.

Then a committee of three members of the board was appointed to check on the auditor and again this brought forth opposition. The Republicans demanded that if it was a question of saving money by the appointment of a county auditor then the committee on county auditor should work without compensation or travel expenses, and so strenuously was this matter debated that a resolution was finally adopted providing for no expenses or salary for the committee.

The committee on purchase of rights of way was reduced from 6 to 4 members as another money saving effort.

The appointment of George B. Snyder of Saugerties as county sealer of weights and measures was also hotly contested, the Democrats having prior to presenting Mr. Snyder's name voted out of office the present sealer, Frank Ten Eyck.

Simply An Error

Also an explanation of the appropriation of $3,050 for clerk hire adopted at the last Thursday meeting of the board was made. It appears that this was simply a mistake. It was explained after Supervisor Elsworth of Esopus had moved to reconsider the vote that there had been a mistake. In presenting the resolution asking for $3,050 instead of the $1,650 as had been customary it was not known that the old board before going out of office had appropriated the usual $1,400 for the deputy clerk. Democratic leaders explained that it was intended to raise $1,400 for the deputy and $1,650 for additional special clerks. It had been simply an error.

However in correcting this error there were numerous motions, amendments, withdrawals of motions and amendments and consents to accept amendments and so forth before the matter was finally straightened out.

The session was one of the hottest which has been held in recent years and brings back memories of old days, there was "something doing every minute" when the board was in session. Allegations were made by Democratic supervisors that they had become tired of hearing no opposition to anything presented to the board in the past four years and Supervisor Wright said that in the past there had been no opposition to anything and that supervisors who were asleep even woke up and voted "aye" and this was the first he had ever heard the former chairman make any objection to anything. This remark was made when Mr. Elsworth objected to the paying of expenses of the committee of three appointed by the chairman to check up on the new county auditor.

The session was called to order shortly after 2 o'clock by Chairman Alfred Markle of Rochester. Every supervisor was in his seat.

First Indication of Opposition

The first indication of opposition came after Supervisor Myers, seconded by Supervisor Armater, moved that the reading of the minutes of the previous session be dispensed with. Supervisor Elsworth asked that the clerk read the resolution which was adopted at the session last Thursday appropriating $3,050 for clerk hire. The resolution offered by Supervisor Osterhoudt of Marbletown was read, it provided for $3,050 for extra clerk hire per year.

Mr. Elsworth then moved to reconsider the resolution. He claimed that the resolution called for an appropriation of $3,050 for the purposes which in the past had been accomplished with an appropriation of $1,650. He said he had no desire to hamper the work of the board, he said he wanted the clerk to have ample help, but he did not know why this increase in amount was necessary.

The new county attorney, Arthur H. Ewig, asked to be heard. He said he had compared the resolution with the old one of past years and there had been no intent to increase the amount for clerks and assistants. It was intended to provide for a deputy and two assistants. Mr. Ewig said he understood that the clerk hired all of the help, the total salary of which was $3,050.

Mr. Elsworth said that in view of that explanation he would be compelled to press his motion to reconsider. At the annual session of the board last December he said an appropriation had been made of $1,400 for the deputy clerk's salary. The resolution of the past meeting which called for an appropriation of $3,050 and which had been adopted would mean that there would be $1,400 left in the hands of the clerk.

Supervisor Stanbrough seconded the motion of Mr. Elsworth to reconsider the resolution of last week.

At that point Chairman Markle and Mr. Ewig went into consideration for a moment and Mr. Markle asked Mr. Elsworth if he would be kind enough to hold his resolution for a few moments until they had acted on the other resolutions. Mr. Elsworth said he would.

Ray LeFever Named.

A resolution was then presented by Supervisor Osterhoudt of Marbletown naming Ray LeFever of Marbletown county auditor and purchasing agent for the next two years at an annual salary of $1,500 and traveling expenses necessary. The resolution also called for a clerk at $1,000 per year. The resolution called for a purchasing agent to buy all supplies, audit gas, electricity, telephone bills and water bills, care for maintenance of the county buildings, audit all county bills, including the Tuberculosis Hospital bills. The resolution also provided that the County Commissioner of Public Welfare be placed under the jurisdiction of the county auditor and that all expenditures of that office be made through the county auditor, who is authorized to audit all public welfare bills. The resolution also provided that the county auditor had jurisdiction over and has power to assign offices to county officials and to cause surrender of offices as he deems necessary. No work will be paid for or supplies paid for unless secured through requisition from the purchasing officer and auditor. A monthly meeting will be held and the auditor will make an annual report to the board each November.

Mr. Ewig again asked permission to address the board. He said that the resolution was drawn in accordance with his understanding of the county law and in accordance with recommendations made by the state comptroller's office following an examination of the county's affairs some time ago. That report which is now frequently quoted from stated that it was illegal to have an auditing committee appointed from the members of the board. Mr. Ewig said he felt that the appointment of three members from the board at annual salaries of $500 each had been illegal and he had taken the matter up with the attorney general's office and he believed the recommendations of the State Comptroller were correct.

After Mr. Ewig had concluded his speech Supervisor Heitzman asked if he might inquire as to the qualifications of the new man.

Chairman Markle said, "He is very highly recommended."

Opposed To Appointing An Outsider

Supervisor Elsworth then addressed the chair. He said that he did not know the man who had been proposed and he did not want anyone to feel that he was making a personal matter of the thing but he thought that the board of auditors as constituted in the past had been a legal body despite the report of the comptroller. He said he believed the old board had been constituted constitutionally and proper and that he was familiar with the words of criticism of the investigators from the comptroller's office. He said their law was not sound. He said last year or two years ago when the board of county auditors had been appointed the report was at hand from the comptroller but the board had voted solidly for the appointment of the board of county auditors from the board of supervisors and there had been no criticism as to the salaries which amounted to the same as was

U. S. GIVES MONEY TO AID WILD LIFE

Plan Stream Improvement on Extensive Scale.

Washington.—For the first time in the history of the federal government, means have been provided for stream improvement on a large scale to increase the fish productivity and carrying capacity of the streams on its public lands, according to a bulletin of the American Game association. A grant of $127,300, has been made to the United States bureau of fisheries to survey the waters of the national forests and national parks and for the improvement of streams.

Areas embraced in the project are the Shenandoah National park and the Shenandoah National forest, both in Virginia; Monongahela National forest in West Virginia; Battell forest and Green mountain region in Vermont; White mountain national forest, New Hampshire; Glacier national park, Montana; Yosemite national park, Sequoia national park, Klamath national forest and sites to be selected in Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Nevada and Montana.

The bureau of fisheries also received a grant of $128,000 to improve its fish cultural plants including 84 hatcheries, and another grant of $150,000 for the construction of four new game fish hatcheries.

An additional grant of $15,000 has been allotted to the fisheries bureau for a scientific study of stream pollution by domestic sewage and trade wastes upon fish life, and also to utilize the nitrogenous materials now discarded in such wastes to increase production of food and game fishes in lakes, artificial ponds and rivers.

Grants of $734,750 have been made from public works administration funds to the United States biological survey for improvements on its present refuges for migratory bird and big game. No funds have been made available to purchase and reflood marshes for waterfowl feeding and breeding grounds.

Report Reveals Safety in Air Travel Rising

Washington.—Proof of increasing safety in air transportation is shown by figures just released by the Department of Commerce pointing out that civil aircraft in the United States flew 42,806 miles per accident in the first half of 1933, as compared with 20,814 miles in the same period of 1932.

Eugene L. Vidal, director of the department's bureau of aeronautics, also drew attention to the fact that 409,356 miles were flown per fatal accident and 629,779 miles per passenger fatality in the 1933 period as compared with 354,976 miles and 591,626 miles, respectively, in the first six months of 1932.

One hundred twenty-eight persons were killed in the 765 air accidents in the 1933 half, out of a total of 1,310 persons concerned directly in the mishaps. Ninety were severely injured, 183 suffered minor injuries, and the remainder were unharmed.

Personnel was blamed for 51.39 per cent of the 1933 accidents, and power plant failures for 19.89 per cent. Airplane failures, 10.43 per cent; miscellaneous (including weather, darkness, airport, or terrain, and other) 17.64 per cent; and undetermined and doubtful, 0.65 per cent, completed the list of causes of accidents.

MT. TREMPER GRANGE UNIT HELD REGULAR MEETING

Mt. Tremper, Jan. 9.—On January 5 the Grange held its regular meeting. It was decided to install the new officers at the next meeting, January 18.

Announcement was made of the death of Sister Morris's mother, and the Grange sends its most sincere sympathy to Sister Morris.

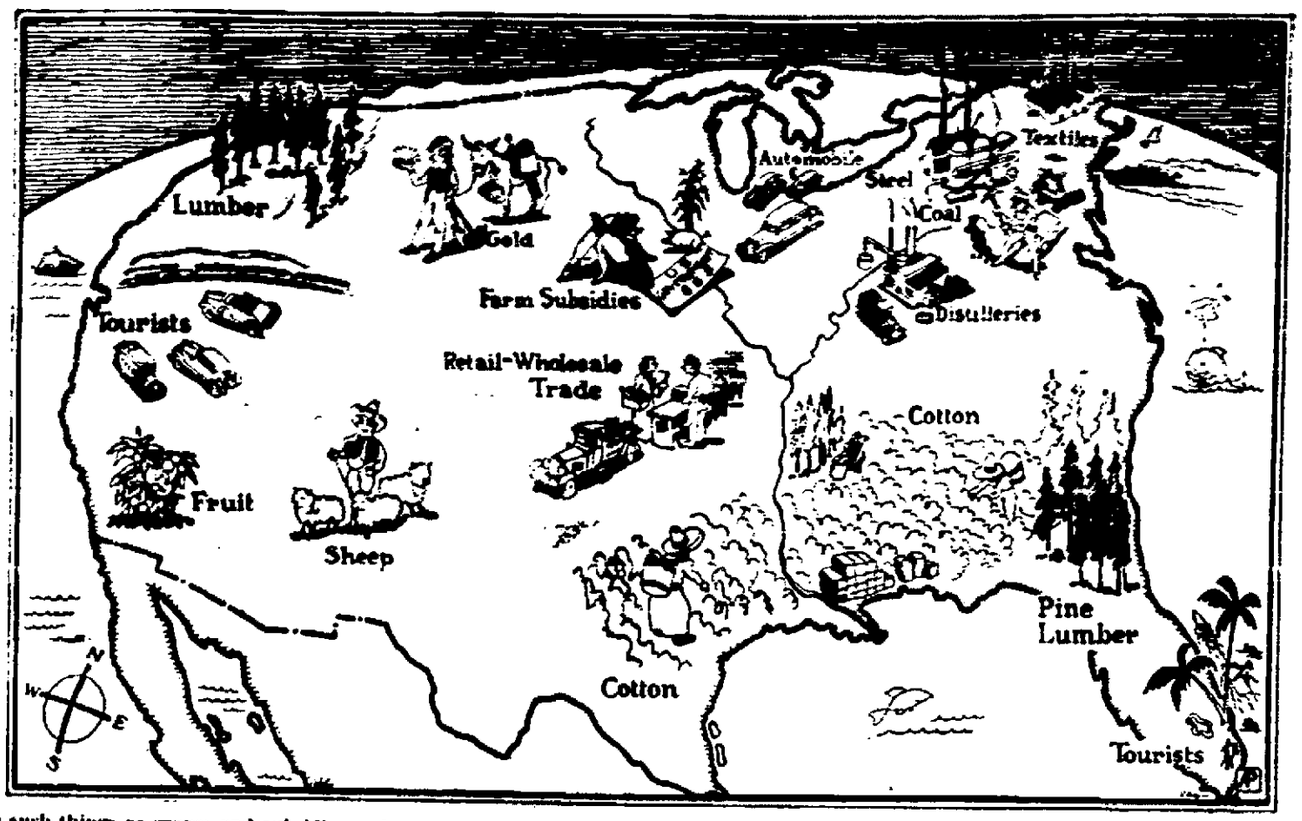

Brother Homer Markle, Sr., was reported ill, and it is hoped by the Grange he will recover quickly.

Sister I. Riseley, Brothers Louis and Grant Lane form a committee to plan an enjoyable evening for Friday, January 12, when many games and stunts will be played and a minstrel will be featured. A real get-together party is expected, and everyone is invited to attend. All are asked to bring an article of food and a small admission fee.

The lecturer's hour, under the direction of Sister Zauner and ably assisted by Sister B. Von Der Osten met with the satisfaction and enjoyment of all attending.

Refreshments and dancing brought the session to a close at 11:15 o'clock.

REFLECTING AMERICA'S GAINS IN FACTORY AND FARM, MINE AND MART

In such things as grapes and subsidies and cotton crops and trees is painted the picture of American economic conditions. Thus, in the south cotton and pine have led in the early signs of recovery, in the far northwest lumber has shown the way, while manufacturing continued upward in many cities, along with improvement in wholesale and retail lines. Checks from the government paid farmers' back debts, and gold mining and automobiles put more money into more pockets. Signs of an upswing as reported by business men and statisticians dot the country, the map showing some of these high spots and the approximate sections where their influence is reported apparent.

OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY THE KINGSTON CHAPTER, O. E. S.

Friday evening, January 5, the newly elected and appointive officers of Kingston chapter, No. 155, O. E. S., were installed as follows: Worthy matron, Mrs. Florence Schoonmaker; worthy patron, David Boyd; associate matron, Miss Gertrude Egbertson; treasurer, Mrs. Edith Potter; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Terwilliger; conductress, Mrs. Gladys Potter; associate conductress, Mrs. Cornelia Clark; chaplain, Miss Mary Fields; marshal, Mrs. Christine Wilson; historian, Mrs. Mathilda Cole; organist, Mrs. Pansy Hudler; warder, Miss Beatrice Spiegel. Adah, Mrs. Gladys Woolsey; Ruth, Mrs. Edna Hardwick; Esther, Miss Selma Lehr; Martha, Mrs. Dorothy Leware; Electa, Mrs. Margaret Trowbridge; color bearer, Mrs. Frieda Renn; sentinel, George B. Main.

Preceding the installation ceremonies a resume of the year's events was read by the historian, Miss Ella Zoller, which was greatly appreciated. The retiring worthy matron, Mrs. Kittie Budington, delivered her farewell address which was enjoyed by all. The officers and floral staff of 1933 then presented a beautiful degree called rainbow drill, presenting Worthy Kittie Budington with a profusion of flowers in the colors of the rainbow; also a past matron's jewel set with a diamond and a sum of money from the officers and members of 1933 and also many gifts from friends.

The ceremonies of installation then took place, the newly installed worthy matron, Mrs. Florence Schoonmaker, was escorted to the east through a star formed by her officers of 1934. Sister Marion Hudler sang very sweetly a welcome song. The worthy matron, Florence Schoonmaker, then gave her acceptance address, asking the cooperation of all her officers and members. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers from the chapter and many gifts from friends. Gifts were also presented to Gertrude Egbertson, David Boyd, Gladys Potter and Cornelia Clark. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

ACCORD.

Accord, Jan. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barley, Mrs. Josephine Lawrence and two children spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. Lester Coddington and son.

Ben Schoonmaker, who has been seriously ill, is able to be out again.

Cards have been received by friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanier and Weston Barley, who are spending some time in Miami, Fla.

The Center Leaves have the finest Tobacco Quality
that's why only center leaves are used in Luckies

The first thing people see and like about Luckies is how round and firm they are. The tobacco doesn't spill out and there are no loose ends to cling to lips. That's because we pack each and every Lucky full to the brim with long, even strands of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos—only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves—because they are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. That's why Luckies always draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth. So smoke a Lucky, a fully packed cigarette. And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

Annual Meeting At Redeemer Church

The annual congregational meeting of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. An election for one elder and four deacons will be held. Delegates to the annual Synod and Conference conventions will also be elected. All of the organizations will render a report of their activities for the year 1933. Following the meeting refreshments provided by the Intermediate Luther League will be served by members of the Ladies' Aid and the Sewing Circle.

The Intermediate Luther League will present three short comedies, Friday, January 19th, at 8 p. m. The plays are "Station W.H.Y." "The Little Ladies' Fashion Review" and "When Greek Meets Greek." Circle No. 2 will meet at the home of Mrs. G. Koch Wednesday, January 17th. The Downtown Circle (Circle No. 2) will hold a Silver Tea at the church Wednesday, January 24th, at 3 p. m. to which they invite all the ladies of the church with their friends.

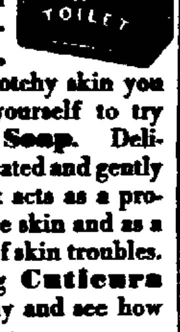

The 37th annual anniversary service of the congregation will be observed Sunday, January 28th. The choir will sing "Hear My Prayer" by Mendelssohn.

MR. RIPPERT EXPLAINS AND ALL IS CLARIFIED

January 9, 1934.

To the Editor of The Freeman
Dear sir:

It was with some surprise that I read the editorial appearing in your paper on Monday, January 8. Certainly the author of that editorial was not familiar with the question discussed.

The Board of Supervisors increased no salaries and the amounts to be expended for salary purposes to different county officials and employes, as passed upon by the Board are the same as the preceding year. A careful reading of the resolution commented upon in your article would have disclosed that the clerk of this board was authorized to employ a deputy clerk or assistants whose aggregate salary should not exceed $3,050, which is the same amount paid in the years 1932 and 1933. As a matter of fact, to avoid any misunderstanding, the resolution at yesterday's meeting was further clarified so that there can now be no question as to this fact.

I wish to point out to you that it is not the intention or policy of this board to increase expenditures or salaries where such action can be avoided. This is certainly evidenced by the action of the board in reducing the number of members in the rights of way committee from six to four and by eliminating a board of auditors of three members and changing the same to one, thus eliminating the expense, mileage, etc., of three persons.

I believe in view of the misconception which of necessity would follow from a reading of your editorial that this communication of mine should receive reasonable and proper publicity in your paper and I ask that you please give it such publicity.

Very truly yours,
JOHN D. RIPPERT,
Clerk, Board of Supervisors.

RELIGIOUS GROUP MEETS AT 8 WEDNESDAY EVENING

During the month of January, on Wednesday evening of each week, there will be held three home gatherings for friendly conversation on matters of religion under the auspices of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church. These gatherings will be held this Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the homes of Monroe Burger, 3 Clifton avenue; Miss Hale, 12 Orchard street and Miss Osterhoudt, 118 Hone street. Friends and neighbors are cordially invited.

The regular mid-week service is also held each Thursday evening at 7:30 in the church.

Brown is Accused.

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—Paul Henderson, former assistant postmaster general, told Senate investigators today that Postmaster General Brown awarded about 5,000 miles of air mail contracts without competitive bidding after Congress had specifically refused him this authority.

BIG "SECRET" PLANE IS READY FOR TEST

Huge Airliner Planned for Ocean Flights.

New York.—The first transatlantic airliner, which has been in course of closely guarded development for more than two years, and which will give to America, in the spirited international race for ocean airplanes, the first transport airplane designed especially to fly either the Atlantic or Pacific on regular mail schedules, will be ready to take the air soon for a series of running tests, it was announced here by Igor Sikorsky.

The big ship, first of three sister ships, which incorporates revolutionary improvements in construction as well as in transport aircraft design, is rapidly assuming its final form in the aircraft factory in Bridgeport, Conn.

"While no detailed specifications concerning either the construction or performance of these ships may be given out, other than those details originally made public, the new transatlantic type S-42 flying boat will provide a performance substantially improved over the basic requirements contained in the Pan-American specifications," Mr. Sikorsky said.

Improved Methods.

"Whereas these requirements called for a flying boat capable of transporting the indicated over-ocean mail load over 2,500 miles against head wind conditions of 30 m. p. h., the S-42 will actually have a considerably greater range under these same conditions and, in addition, will be able to carry a substantially greater load. Under the construction contracts, at each stage in the development of the new plane we have experimented with constantly improving materials and methods, and have thereby effected important advances in both construction and performance."

More than a year and a half was devoted to the engineering research behind the plans for the new trans-ocean airliners. Construction actually got under way more than a year ago, several months before the construction contracts had been awarded.

"Because of this early start," Mr. Sikorsky stated, "both our engineers and Pan-American Airways will be able to take advantage of an important testing period which we believe will result in further substantial improvements in the performance characteristics of the sister ships which are to follow this first model.

"Because Pan-American Airways must carry the entire financial burden involved in development of new international aircraft, whereas advanced equipment for European competitive lines is developed directly at government expense or under subsidies provided for this purpose, it was necessary for the American operators to develop this new equipment for a dual purpose so that, in securing a transport plane capable of performing trans-ocean mail service, the same ship would also be highly adaptable for use on the present passenger, mail and express routes between North and South America.

Will Carry Passengers.

"For its immediate transport trial service, therefore, although basically a transocean, mail-carrying transport, the new flying boat will be fitted as a 32-passenger airliner for use in carefully controlled test operations on the trans-Caribbean routes of the Pan-American Airways system.

"The new S-42 will have, in addition to the regular crew of five, capacity for 32 passengers, with more adequate accommodations than now existing in any type of transport plane, in addition to 1,000 pounds of air mail and express and will be capable of flying this load over a 1,200-mile range."

Vanishing Spots on Sun Augur Long, Cold Winter

Montreal.—Science decrees that it will be a long severe winter. The prediction, made by McGill university astronomers, is based upon the fact that the period of sun spot of the last four or five years has come to an end. Studying their charts and graphs, the astronomers find that this month, or early next, will see the end of the numerous sun spots visible for many months past. With the end of the sun spots, for the time being, there is a lessening of radiation from the sun, for it has been found that the greatest radiation takes place during the maximum of sun spot activity.

Weather, they point out, is directly dependent on radiation from the sun. Until a new cycle of sun spots comes into prominence there should be comparatively steady weather. The cycle, it is believed, has changed from comparatively mild but highly variable winters to colder but more constant winters.

Flyer Carries 100,664 Pounds in Eleven Days

Edmonton, Alta.—Working against a rapidly approaching freezeup, W. Leigh Brintnell, northern flyer, has created a new record for express flying in the North. With a single machine Brintnell moved 100,664 pounds of freight from Fort Norman to Fort Franklin in eleven days.

Freezeup conditions came on quickly this year and river boats were unable to handle the freight, most of which was the winter food supply for miners of the Great Bear lake field.

In the face of poor flying conditions the pilot shuttled back and forth. Only on one day was he forced to "sit" down by bad weather.

Meetings Will Be Omitted.

The regular Thursday afternoon meetings of the Junior League and the Intermediate League of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will be omitted this week; also the prayer service Thursday evening on account of the death of the pastor. These services will be resumed as usual on Thursday, January 15.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to McBride's or your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Adv.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 9, 1934.

That $1,400 a year increase in the appropriation for clerk hire by the clerk of the Board of Supervisors seems to have been made under the misapprehension that the salary of the deputy clerk was not provided for in the budget adopted last month by the outgoing Board of Supervisors. As soon as the error, due to ignorance, was discovered measures were taken to remedy it at the session on Monday. So all is well. It is hoped that other similar errors will be avoided in future. Unless promptly corrected mistakes of this kind will prove costly to the taxpayers.

THAT INCREASED BUDGET

It was almost a forgone conclusion that the budget presented by Mayor Carey for 1934 would have to be changed if the city was to get the proper service it demanded. It is easy to prepare a reduced budget when one isn't in office to carry out the city's business, but it is an entirely different thing to take a reduced budget and make it go farther than is possible with the funds on hand. Undoubtedly the aldermen will face criticism for increasing the budget, but they know how much is needed to run the city, and it takes courage to assess that amount after the lesser sum was suggested.

Some of the increases in the budget were due to mistakes in figures and anticipations by the Carey administration.

The health budget was increased because it is believed that the revenues anticipated by the Carey administration will in all probability not be realized. A clerk will be added to the police department, thus releasing the officer now on that job for duty as a policeman, and causing less additional cost for special police officers.

The public welfare department shows an increase of $26,000 because considering 1933 expenditures and anticipating those in 1934 it was found that the proposed budget was too low.

The board of public works will get an increase of $23,000 which will give the board the funds to carry on the amount of work for sewer and highway maintenance it did last year. It is not the intention of the present administration to slash the budget here as the work of the board is one of the more necessary projects in the city administration.

The interest on certificates of indebtedness was increased, necessary because of the CWA projects which were not included in the Carey proposed budget.

One month's additional interest was added to the North Manor avenue sewer project an increase of $31.67.

The Home Relief budget was also increased in anticipation of the funds needed and what the state would return in refunds.

Rents, home relief salaries and other items were removed from the budget because of the CWA, which is caring for these items. This amounts to some $2,000. Decreases were also made in the miscellaneous anticipated revenues personal income taxes to the amount of $2,000; bank stock taxes amounting to $1,000; and surplus revenue from 1932 amounting to $4,000.

It will be seen that no drastic increases have been made, simply enough to put the local administration on a sensible working basis, one where it will be able to carry out the program desired by the people and pledged by the present government.

Before people begin to attack the new budget it would be well to remember that these same people always want new street lights, efficient police service, proper paving, fire protection, the poor and unfortunate cared for, health protection, a sanitary city, adequate sewerage, and other items, which should be the part of every good city government. We all want a modern, [illegible] city government and since we do we must pay for it. We [illegible] what we pay for as evidenced last December when there was [illegible] money for proper snow removal which has caused our streets to be [illegible] for several weeks. [illegible] let's not kick when we have to pay to get it.

CHILD LABOR ABOLISHED

Enumerating in his message to Congress on Wednesday the achievements of the NRA, President Roosevelt declared child labor is abolished. Coming from the highest of official sources in the land, this declaration confirms The Freeman's statement several days ago to the same effect. The NRA codes abolish all offensive forms of child labor without going to an unreasonable and oppressive length. They can be quickly amended and made more stringent in any case that makes greater stringency necessary and are therefore far better than a rigid and drastic amendment to the Constitution could possibly be. Therefore there is no need to further tinker the basic law of the nation and clutter it with details that should be mere by-laws.

But the zealous extremists will refuse to admit this. They will clamor for their pet "reform" and bolster up their demands with citations of conditions that may once have been but that no longer exist. To the one-track mind of the cyclical reformer the thing that he demands must be brought about in the precise way he has planned, which is usually the most harmful way conceivable.

Child labor that is detrimental to children has been abolished. It is only abolition of child labor that is beneficial to the child, financially and educationally, that Constitutional Amendment would bring about. Therefore, the proposed amendment should not be ratified. It will not be if the state legislators are not stampeded by the bleating of professional busybodies. They will not be stampeded if they hear from common-sense people. Let them hear from you.

THE MAN OF FIFTY

Every day you are reading about men of fifty who have "dropped dead" at home, at the office, on the golf links or elsewhere. You may therefore wonder if there is any particular danger to life at the age of fifty.

"The man of fifty is at an awkward period of his life. He is not old enough to boast of his years; and too old to carry on as he did at 35 or 40, but too vain to admit it. He fancies himself still in the race; able as ever to stand the strain. He scorns the more leisurely life that increasing weight and girth tell him he ought to follow. On the golf links, in the business world he is as keen as ever, with the result that when illness signals come to him he disregards them again and again. Then must be taken the long rest that should have been spread over previous years."

I am quoting the words of an editorial in an old respected city paper. Dr. G. P. Jackson, Medical Officer of Health, Toronto, Canada, points out that the expectancy of life in a man of fifty is less than it was some years ago, because of his disregard of sane methods of living. He throws himself into the current of worry and anxiety attendant upon the mad rush for the almighty dollar and lack of physical and mental rest. And he also continues to overindulge in food—and perhaps drink.

The only suggestion that Dr. Jackson and other health officers make is that the man of fifty take things a little easier; just a little will do. Never mind trying to keep up with the athletic Jonesee.

If all of us would rest ourselves just a little time ahead of being tired, there would be no danger. It is going just a little farther, playing a few extra holes of golf, putting in an extra hour or two at our work, going out a number of nights in succession, staying up an extra hour or two at nights, that takes away "reserve" strength and makes us easier victims of passing ailments. It is these little extras that make us old.

The man of fifty should think the matter over seriously, remembering that while his mind is on the sunny side of life, his body, because of age, is really on the shady side.

Further, if he is willing to ease up, to take resting periods, he will find that "there is beauty along the road that leads on past the half-century mark."

OFFICERS INSTALLED SUNDAY AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

On Sunday evening, January 7, the officers of the various organizations of St. Paul's Lutheran Church were inducted into office at the vesper service.

The installation was unique and beautiful. The rite used was the candle-light installation service. Miss Helen Walker was the herald. As she called names, the officers proceeded to the altar where they formed a living cross. In the dimmed church, the pastor, securing a light from the altar candles, then proceeded to light the candles of the presidents of the organizations, who in turn lighted the candles of their subordinate officers. Mrs. Herman La Tour sang two solos, "A Charge to Keep I Have" and "Follow the Gleam." Carrying their candles, the living cross proceeded from the church, singing "Take My Life and Let It Be."

Those installed were: The Bible School, Carl Will, superintendent; Mrs. Fred Renn, secretary; Miss Alida Will, treasurer; Miss Grace Berryan, birthday secretary; Mrs. H. Kelder, cradle roll secretary. The Ladies' Aid, Mrs. M. Radatz, president; Mrs. E. Otto, vice-president; Mrs. F. Renn, secretary; Mrs. F. Myers, treasurer. The Men's Club, Thomas Rice, president; Fred Renn, vice-president; Harry Marquart, secretary; Louis Otto, treasurer. The Young People's Society, Miss Helen Koeppen, president; Ray Otto, vice-president; Miss Alida Will, treasurer; Miss Elsie Walker, secretary.

Chapter 25

THE KISS

CURT knew something was troubling A-K deeply. He had been noticing it ever since the old officer arrived six hours ago.

"What is it, A-K?" he asked.

Marlin turned to him with a resolute air. "I might as well get it over with, I suppose. She, I mean Rosalie, told me to break you the news. I should have, before now, but it's a dismal duty."

In a flash Curt guessed the trouble. Rosalie had landed a more suitable candidate than himself! He wondered sardonically whether the gentleman was the Edmonton banker or the Seattle ship owner.

"I believe I know what you're going to tell me, A-K." For Marlin's sake he hid his sheer delight over the unexpected good news. "Rosalie came to the conclusion that she and I just weren't suited for each other, and so she—"

"You're being generous." Marlin interrupted, more sharply than he had ever spoken of Rosalie. "The conclusion she came to was that she wanted to marry money; and she went after it, and—well, she got it, got a whole steamship line!" He made a weary gesture and stood up. "Well, you know now. I don't think it's altogether a surprise to you. Nor," he added pointedly, "very much of a disappointment."

"No, it isn't." Curt admitted honestly. "I was intending to have a frank talk with her when I was in the city a month ago, but she wasn't there. Rosalie and I can be a lot better friends as things stand than if we'd have married."

"Yes, you're right. She's got one idea of what life's all about and you've got a different idea, and the two would've been oil and water."

When they went out to old John's camp, the company had already gathered. On the packing box Sonya sat talking with Mrs. Hodkins and Paul and a girl. The Indians and prospectors were there, and the young trapper had brought his two wolf cubs, still fuzzy and playful but now grown too big for his pocket.

One person of that former evening was missing, though; and Curt felt the loss keenly. As his glance occasionally met Sonya's across the fire, he knew that she too was thinking of Ralph Nichols and a lonely lobstick up the Liliuar.

Like some wild creature brought in from the mountains, Tenn-Og hung back at the edge of the fireglow, trying to understand all those strange tongues and strange people of the outerworld. After an exile of one hundred and twenty years, a Klosohee had returned at last to the ancestral home of his tribe.

Curt felt a proprietary interest in that proud little band which had fought him so fiercely. They were his clan, and he wanted to give them a helping hand and some desperately needed counsel. Even in that isolated country they could no longer hold out against a changing world. Now that the primitive Slam-Klale was dead and Tenn-Og's half brother was leading them, he believed he could wean them from their unsocial ways.

Curt noticed how tired Sonya was, too tired to talk or even listen to the others. The long trip out of the Liliuars, ended only yesterday, had been hard on her; he himself still felt logy from it.

A LITTLE before midnight she looked across at him with an understanding glance, excused herself and went up toward the factor's house.

After a decent interval he got up and left, as inconspicuously as possible. In the moon shadows of the trading post he found her, waiting for him.

"You were so long, dear," she whispered, "I thought you weren't coming."

Curt disarmed her with a kiss. "I had to wait several minutes, and then I swung out around the Indian tepees so those folks wouldn't know I'd followed you."

He linked his arm through hers and they started out the path toward the old fort.

"Does A-K still think I'm an adventuress, Curt?"

"When I told him how you trailed Karakhan, he wanted to sign you up for the Mounted."

"Oh, that'd be fun! I think I'll do it."

"You will not! You're going to cast your lot with the Provincial Police."

She mused: "Commissioner, wife of the Provincial Commissioner—that's an awfully high position for me to live up to, Curt. I don't know whether I can make good at it or not."

"But think of what I'll have to live up to, sweet. Look"—he took her hand and laid it upon his own, her slender tapering fingers upon his rough calloused ones.

"Don't!" Sonya stopped him. She raised his hand to her lips. "This hand fought for me, and was wounded. Do you remember"—they were passing Curt's tent—"remember the evening when I came by here and Paul said 'Bon soir' to me? I didn't know you were in the tent or even that you existed. Six weeks ago—it doesn't seem possible, Curt."

A thousand yards from the post they sat down on a lichen-covered rock near the wave edge. Sonya nestled against him, her tired head against his shoulder.

She was motionless and silent so long that he believed she must have dropped off to sleep, but when he glanced down he saw that she was looking up at him, studying him.

"You're sorry, aren't you, Curt?"

"Sorry—for what, dear?"

"That we're not going to live in a country like this. That we're going back to the cities."

"I am, a little," he admitted. "I can't help being, dear. But my place is down there. You helped me see that. And besides, we'll have all this summer for our honeymoon in the Liliuars. I'm being honest with you, Sonya—I don't want to go back down north. This work I'm taking on is a responsible position, and I'm egoist enough to believe that eventually I'll climb on past it."

SHE twined her fingers with his, as though she had been worrying about his happiness and now was reassured by his words.

In the distance he could see the ruddy glow of old John's campfire and the twinkle of figures passing back and forth in front of it. A night wind rustling in the woods behind brought him the purl of an overfalls and the sad elemental song of the pines.

Low in the southwestern sky red Antares, Sonya's tryst star and the star he had watched at Ralph's death, was sinking out of sight in a notch between two mountains.

When he glanced down at Sonya again, long minutes later, he saw that her eyes were closed. He did not stir, or wake her; it was too precious to have her asleep in his arms. She seemed so different at heart from what she had been on their trip north—more cheerful and at peace. With the death of Karakhan a black load had fallen away from her. She could begin to forget that tragedy in distant foggy Vladivostok, and start to live again.

He marveled at the strange destiny which had brought her to him—from the Volga of old Russia, across Siberia, China, Canada, to this northern wilderness where he and she had met. He thought of the night when he had seen her looking out into the rain, lonely and moody, with that fearful trip ahead of her.

Far away across the lake a wolf lifted its wailing crescendo, its voice laden with the loneliness and savagery and beauty of the Northland. He would miss all that, Curt thought; sorrowfully—the Arctic prairies, the Nahanni Mountains, the happy freedom which had been his for a year and which he would put behind him irrevocably that fall.

It seemed to him that when he had sent his plane crashing into Karakhan's ship, it had been like folding up his wings and bidding good-bye to adventure. From the very beginning of the Karakhan hunt intangible bonds had been tightening upon him little by little, drawing him back to his destined course of life.

But he did not feel that he was leaving the wilderness for good and all. They could come back to it, he and Sonya, and live for a while in it. There would be times when they would need to come back—to keep their perspective and get a new hold on their strength. What if he did regret the musk-ox prairies and the white-wolf hills? One could not have everything.

He felt, as he smoothed a wisp of hair from Sonya's cheek, that he had received his full share, and more. He had health and courage, and a position that challenged all his powers, and the vista of still more challenging heights toward which he and Sonya could climb together.

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL NISENSON & ALFRED PARKER

"TANNHAUSER" was the most daring opera of the day when Richard Wagner wrote it—1843 to 1845. First produced in Dresden on October 19, 1845, with Wagner himself conducting, it bewildered both the performers and the audience. So little was it understood that in 1852, Wagner wrote a long treatise with minute directions for performing the work, and sent a copy to every opera house in Germany!

Tannhauser was a medieval German knight. In this story, he has lived with Venus for a year, and undertakes a pilgrimage to Rome to expiate this sin. The lovely "Evening Star" song in the third act, is sung by Wolfram, Tannhauser's friend. Wolfram prays to the radiant star, the one bright point in the gloomy death-like night, to protect the sorrowing Elizabeth, who is in love with Tannhauser and hopefully awaits his return.

When the opera was produced in Paris in 1861, the members of the Jockey Club were outraged because it contained no ballet! They booed and hissed the singers, and the result was a riot that nearly broke up the performance.

BIRTHDAY PARTY GIVEN BY ST. PAUL'S LADIES' AID

Last Thursday evening, the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Lutheran Church celebrated their seventh birthday. They had as guests the members of the congregation.

The tables were beautifully and tastefully decorated and were placed forming a Grecian cross. Refreshments were served which had been provided by the ladies of the church.

A short program was rendered, consisting of a solo by Miss Betty La Tour; a violin solo by John J. Young; a piano solo by Miss Natalie La Tour, and later a solo by Mrs. Herman La Tour. Charles Andres spoke for the congregation in a feeling manner. Henry Wieber brought salutations from the church council. Fred Renn gave a few timely remarks and Carl Will spoke for the Bible school. The officers of the society were called upon to say a few words. The program was closed by an impersonation of a radio program of celebrities with "Dicky Bird" announcing over Station St. PAUL.

After the program was concluded a social hour was enjoyed by all. Pastor Young acted as toastmaster.

POLITICS at Random

By BRYON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

AMID the encircling uncertainties of the new year, there is one serious certainty for the politicians: 1934 is another campaign year.

Come what may, every member of the house must face his constituents and open his record for inspection if he wants to remain a member. One-third of the senators, too, come up for reelection, and the Roosevelt administration, itself, will learn at the polls in November whether it is to escape that off-year overturn of the legislative balance which has overtaken so many of its predecessors.

Roosevelt The Issue

MR. ROOSEVELT and his policies of recovery, by common consent, are becoming the issue, insofar as there is any national issue. The republican organization is, after some hesitation, against Mr. Roosevelt and his policies; but that is not saying that individual democrats and republicans will be for those policies or against them.

It is not at all impossible that the real division, down in the congressional districts, will be a "pro-Roosevelt" and an "anti-Roosevelt" division rather than anything like a straight contest between democrats and republicans.

Unlike Other Years

IT would be hard to recall any other mid-administration campaign year which began with the actual physical set-up of the opposing organizations in such a state of uncertainty.

For the democrats, extremely important organizational decisions are ahead. What effort is to be made to include in the administration campaign staff those western republican insurgents who bolted to Roosevelt in 1932? What is to be done, from an organization viewpoint, in states where Roosevelt republicans are running for reelection to congress? No attempt has been made yet to answer these questions.

The republicans thus far do not know either what their organization will be, or who will do the organizing. An internal dispute of proportions is in progress over the national chairmanship.

Does The Past Hold True?

IN this situation it is doubtful how much reliance can be placed on the universally-accepted laws which in the past have governed political trends.

One of these laws is that in the off-year, between presidential elections, there is a normal shift of greater or less degree away from the party in power, toward the party out of power.

Another long-established tradition says that if this shift is great enough to return a congressional majority hostile to the administration, that administration is likely to be defeated two years later in the presidential campaign.

Normally, too, on the basis of past performance, the Roosevelt party may be expected to advertise itself as the "progressive" or liberal" party, and the anti-Roosevelt organization may be expected to claim the title of "conservative."

The normal tendency of the Roosevelt managers, as established in the preconvention campaign of 1932 and adhered to since, is toward a political union of west and south, against the east.

So far, so good. It would be a bold prognosticator who, at this stage, would go farther than to recall these "normalities" for what they may be worth.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—As far as the republicans are concerned their one absorbing interest during this session of congress in both senate and house will be to build up issues they can use in the 1934 elections.

The leaders stress that point. Issues rather than candidates are their chief concern.

The presidential elections in 1936 are too remote for any definite planning at present. With the entire house and one-third of the senate in the field during the coming year there is pressing need that a definite program be whipped into shape for use on the stump.

The leaders generally are agreed that of necessity the issues they endeavor to shape in the coming months must be worked out on a broad outline.

Between Two Fires

FOR example, as the application of the President's recovery program advances it is likely that many things have and will come to the surface on which they might make political capital.

Any attempt to do so, however, they fear, may lay them open to the charge of seeking to break down the administration's efforts to restore the country to better business and employment.

The republicans are as eager as the democrats that prosperity return to the nation. Therefore, while from the political standpoint it may cause them to gnash their teeth when they can't take advantage of what may appear to them as good campaign thunder, most of them merely sigh and say it can't be helped.

The big question facing the leaders is whether republican policies should be shaped so as to go the "new deal" one better—or remain conservative.

Four Issues Stated

MANY of them take the view that the party cannot and will not be reactionary. It is their contention that the democrats have swung so far to the left that a return, at least a part way back, is inevitable.

It is at this point they hope to take their stand.

Specific issues around which the "battle of 1934" will center have been set down by one of the recognized high chieftains of the G. O. P. forces in the senate as follows:

Sound money.
Nationalism vs. internationalism.
The tariff.
Treatment of the war veterans.

There may be others, but he expects these to be the big four.

Sexauer's Two Plans To Solve Dairy Problem

Albany, Jan. 9 — Warning that "any more to reduce the price that farmers are going to receive for milk will have unfortunate results," Fred H. Sexauer, president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., today presented to the New York State Milk Control Board two possible solutions of the dairy industry's troubles.

Mr. Sexauer presented the two possible plans of procedure at a public hearing called by the Control Board to consider whether it would revoke, revise or supplement all of its orders. The board's action was prompted by demoralization of markets due to a flood of milk from other states displacing New York state milk at prices below those fixed by the board, and by requests of dealers for a wider spread between what they pay producers and collect from consumers.

These conditions, said Mr. Sexauer, were foreseen by the Dairymen's League before the Control Board was created and became the league drew attention to them it was criticised. He gave credit to the Control Board for having accomplished much for the good of farmers, but pointed out that no state body could exercise control over milk from other states. The wide difference between fluid milk prices and those for milk going into butter, cheese and other products has brought about inequity between producers within the state such as has never existed, he said.

"There seems to be but two solutions to this problem," said Mr. Sexauer. "One more or less temporary, the other more permanent. Either would be equally effective as a temporary solution.

"The first would be a marketing agreement covering the entire New York milk shed drawn up under the Agricultural Adjustment Act, with the full concurrence of the Control Boards, and possessing the essentials of the marketing agreement drawn by the committee of 18. These essentials are equity among producers as to price received and in sharing surplus burdens; equity among distributors to create between them competition in efficiency, rather than competition in buying milk cheaply.

"The second solution lies with farmers themselves. If producers who are not members of the Dairymen's League and do not want to become members, will form an organization, or organizations broad enough to actually sell the milk for producers, with power to hold surplus off the market, and able to equitably distribute advantages and burdens of surplus control and market service it would be possible for the Dairymen's League and such organizations to form an overhead sales corporation. Such a corporation would equitably distribute fluid sales between the various cooperatives in proportion to their volume of production. This would make possible equitable prices to producers and equitable costs to distributors for milk. It would make possible market stability over a long period. In such a set-up the assistance of Control Boards would be a constructive and desirable influence."

Mr. Sexauer said it was no fault of the Control Boards, or of the organized element of the industry that there is not a marketing agreement in effect now. In considering prices to farmers, he said, it should be remembered that feed costs 40 per cent more than last year, that farm taxes are higher than before the war and that the price of milk to farmers is only 82 per cent of pre-war.

Turpentine

Turpentine is derived from the sap of various trees, and can be made from some which grow in the Northwest, but the turpentine of commerce in the United States comes almost entirely from certain pine trees which are distributed throughout the southern states. Georgia is the leading state.

Convictions totalling 279 out of 374 cases of violations of the migratory bird treaty act were secured by the government during the last year.

FORT EWEN I. O. O. F. INSTALLS LARGE GROUP OF OFFICERS

Fort Ewen, Jan. 9.—At the meetings of Garfield Lodge, No. 422, I. O. O. F., January 4, the district deputy grand master, Jacob J. Donovan and staff of Ulster district, installed the following officers: Noble grand, Elvin Hutchings; vice-grand, Ralph Beaumont; recording secretary, Charles R. Sickler; financial secretary, Carey Secor; treasurer, William M. Stephenson; right supporter of noble grand, Harry Hummel; left supporter of noble grand, Jacob Best; chaplain, Harry Lincoln; warden, John Cure; right supporter of vice-grand, Charles Warren; inside guardian, Martin W. Schleede. Other officers who were unable to be present will be installed later. After the installation the district deputy grand master and staff and some of the brothers gave very interesting talks, which were enjoyed by all present. The noble grand, Elvin Hutchings, was elected after serving the lodge as treasurer for 19 years. Light refreshments were served and all enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

Moose Card Party.

There will be a pinochle party under the auspices of Kingston Lodge, No. 970, Loyal Order of Moose at its rooms, 26 Cedar street, Monday night, January 15, starting at 8:15. There will be refreshments.

NEW TO YOU

...BUT millions will tell you there's nothing else like it!

FOR almost two decades you've been missing something—particularly in weather like this!

It's the motor fuel triumph of the century—AMOCO-GAS—the original special motor fuel!

Now it's here! Came with the march of "AMERICAN"—from the great Middle Atlantic States where it stamped every highway with AMOCO-GAS achievements.

Call the Roll of States—Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, North Carolina—ask them! Millions of motorists say there's nothing else like AMOCO-GAS. And new millions in this—and other new states—will quickly add their praise and approval.

For AMOCO-GAS is not just "another premium gasoline". It is a special motor fuel. It was THE FIRST! And it has revolutionized both the gasoline and automobile industries. Made possible today's high compression motor. Changed all existing ideas on quick-starting, speed, power and performance.

Stop today at the Green Pump for your first experience with AMOCO-GAS—see what a world of difference there is in premium products.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by HERBERT JENSEN

CHAPTER ONE
VULTURINE FACE

WITH an odd alertness Grahame arose from the deeply cushioned chair. Some jungle-bred instinct stirred within him. His uneasе was curiously at variance with the formal surroundings of this studio anteroom.

The ornamental stenographer-secretary paused with her typing and looked up with polite inquiry.

"I am sure Mr. Myberg will see you in just a few minutes, Mr. Grahame," she murmured as if placating his impatience.

Grahame shook his head slightly and looked slowly about the huge low-ceilinged room. It was paneled at both ends in silvered ebony. The sides were solid with French windows done in frosted, angular, leaded glass. Shadows of palm fronds from the adjoining patio made queer modern patterns upon the glass. His gaze examined each object within the room with a studied care. There were but three other chairs like the one in which he had been seated. Except for the girl at the desk, he was alone.

A sense of unease persisted but not so strongly now. The typist's inquiring gaze still held its own. He smiled slightly at his thought that it was like Myberg, Hollywood's greatest executive, to have this platinum blond seated behind an ebony desk in his celebrated ebony and silver offices. He wondered if she were as efficient as she was undoubtedly decorative, and concluded that she was. He recalled something of Myberg's requirements.

The door to the inner offices swung open. A haze of tobacco smoke eddied outward. Voices blended in a mild confusion of sound; then one voice predominated.

"——no better man for the jungle. He's outside now. Shall we have him in? Our picture——"

Another voice rumbled an interruption; whereupon a third voice said, "But Ortega, you can't do everything, you understand." The rumbling voice made some reply. Whereupon, as clear and deeply rich as a 'cello, a feminine voice said:

"Goodness, but it's getting late. I must be going. Gentlemen, can't we discuss this tomorrow? . . . Thank you, Mr. Ortega. I'm so awkward . . . forever losing gloves——"

The door swung slowly shut, cutting off the sounds of the breaking up of the meeting. Grahame picked up his light camel's hair coat and put it over his arm. He took up his hat and stood with a slight uncertainty. The door to Myberg's office clicked. Abruptly that former sense of disquiet took hold of him. He faced the glassed side-wall. The shadows palms lay against the frosted surfaces as if they had been stained in the glass. Whereupon his glance focused upon the one incongruous shadow.

He felt a faint tingling at the base of his scalp. There was a shadow of a face between the leaves. It was an odd face—a vulturine outline with a predatory nose that seemed but a prolongation of an excessively slanting forehead. It was as if a man stood behind a palm trunk, waiting.

GRAHAME walked toward the outer door. A buzzer hummed softly.

The girl at the desk said, in a slightly startled voice, "Mr. Myberg will see you now. The others are leaving."

Half turning, Grahame replied, "Tomorrow. It's late now." The closing door blanketed the girl's confused protest.

Outside the building he strode along the cement walk toward the palms which threw shadowy patterns about his feet. Beams from street lamps sprouted. A thin, diaphanous drizzle began to fall and glisten upon the surrounding shrubbery.

One swift glance assured him that there was no human figure among the palms. He stepped upon the lawn, and moved toward a central tree that might have betrayed the shadowed face he'd seen from within the office. He glanced at the grass at his feet. Behind the smooth trunk it seemed compressed as if a man had recently been standing upon it.

Grahame paused, frowning. The fact that someone had stood in this place was not especially significant. It was important, however, that he had experienced that sense of unease within the office and had localized it as a strange shadow upon a frosted window.

His years in remote places had taught him not to disregard his faint and atavistic sensibilities however baseless they seemed. He pushed the tips of his fingers upward over his forehead and glanced with a semi-wariness above. It was if he stood in some jungly spot and had tilted back his helmet the better to survey the upper branches.

Hearing voices from the far side of the wing that jutted into the patio, he walked over the cushiony lawn toward the sidewalk. While it was not yet dark enough to obscure a view of the street, nevertheless details were hazed. As he stepped upon the cement, a black limousine of expensive make drew up to the curb a few yards beyond him.

A man made a remark in a deep voice. A woman replied and laughed. They were the voices he had heard through the open door into Myberg's offices. Two figures—the owners of the voices, he guessed—moved toward the curb from a doorway. The man helped the woman into the car. A door clicked and the vehicle moved forward.

For an instant the man remained bareheaded facing the vanishing automobile; then crushing his hat upon his head he moved swiftly across the street.

Grahame watched, and began to feel a slight discomfort. He put on his light overcoat. At which point he became conscious of the tan car at the other curb. His mind noted and registered several facts in one instant.

The tan car faced in the wrong direction. Moreover, it was parked in a street in which he remembered that parking was prohibited by police regulation—or Mr. Myberg's influence. Although it was raining, the tonneau was open.

The man who had crossed the street reached the car. He opened a rear door and climbed within. Grahame had a brief glimpse of his outlined figure before he seated himself. He was a huge man with heavy shoulders and short, thick neck.

Two men approached the car from opposite ends of the street. One got into the car and behind the wheel. The other—a small man—seated himself beside the large man in the tonneau. Their combined actions were all very regular and conventional,—but very precise. Grahame had a peculiar sense that this little scene had been rehearsed.

There was no lost motion. The starter growled, and the car moved down the street without perceptible hesitation,—almost as if timed with the sounding of the door shutting after the small man in the rear seat.

Grahame stepped onto the pavement. Several blocks ahead he saw the tail light of the first car held stationary by the red signal of the next arterial crossing. The rear light of the second car diminished toward it. He heard the sound of a motor behind him, and turned toward the curb. A taxicab hesitated, slowed, and stopped.

"Cab, sir?"

GRAHAME entered. The driver asked him where he wanted to be driven. Grahame's lips parted to give the man his address; whereupon with sudden decision he said, "Follow that tan car you see two blocks ahead."

As the gears meshed, Grahame chuckled to himself. He had acted entirely upon impulse since he stood up from his chair in Myberg's anteroom. There was nothing reasonable or excusable about his performance except that instinctive unease that had been the mainspring of his almost automatic actions thereafter.

He lay back in his seat, and considered. He had broken an appointment with a man he hoped would employ him. He had noted a spot in the grass where someone had stood. A woman had entered a car and he had watched her be driven off. Another car which contained three men had gone in the same direction as the other. Certainly they were not a very significant combination of unrelated facts.

Yet, he told himself, he was now engaged in the somewhat idiotic business of following an automobile containing three men who were engaged on an errand of their own doubtlessly no more serious than that of getting to a place where they could enjoy their cocktails and dinners, which he should be doing. Almost he rapped upon the window before him, to redirect the driver.

They entered the stream of traffic that flows out Sunset. Recalling that they were going in the general direction of his apartment house, Grahame decided to wait a little before telling his driver his destination. He became mildly interested to see if his chauffeur could keep his cab within the same traffic group as the tan car. It was dark now. It seemed a difficult job to avoid being blocked at one of the many intersections.

A few blocks west of Gower, the driver lost the tan car. He slowed to the curb, and turned a chagrined face toward his passenger. Grahame smiled.

"It's all right . . . really; it isn't important. Just drive me——"

"I think I know where they went. You see, there's a jog at——"

"I tell you: it doesn't——"

"The party's on me, boss," the driver interrupted him. He pushed up the flag on his meter. The gears growled. Over his shoulder he called, "It takes up Laurel Canyon way and down into the Boulevard. It cuts out a lot of traffic. . . ."

Tomorrow, Grahame finds himself knocking out an antagonist.

The Mayflower

As the Mayflower brought the first permanent settlers to New England, arriving at Plymouth in 1620, so also another ship, the Mayflower, brought the first permanent settlers to Ohio, a group of New England emigrants who arrived at the mouth of the Muskingum river in 1788.

Tuck-in for the Winter

Human "hibernation" is not uncommon on farms in northern Siberia during the great snows. When outdoor activity is impossible, many Muzhik families remain in bed throughout the winter, rising for only an hour or two a day to eat a snack and attend to their fires.

First Cross-Word Puzzle

The first genuine cross-word puzzle of the modern type was composed by Arthur Winn and appeared in a supplement of the Sunday New York World on December 21, 1913. The outbreak of the World war arrested the cross-word puzzle craze temporarily, but it was revived in 1916.

Babies Pick Names

The New Zealand native method of naming children was as follows: The priest would repeat to the infant a long list of names of its ancestors, fixing upon that name which the child, by sneezing or crying, when it was uttered was considered to select for itself.

Africa's Large Fresh Water Lake

Victoria Nyanza, forming the chief source of the Nile in Africa, is the second largest fresh-water lake in the world, covering an area of 26,000 square miles, which is greater than the combined area of five states—New Jersey, Connecticut, Vermont, Rhode Island and Delaware.

Before Painted Finger Nails

Finger-bowls had their genesis before forks were known, when the fingers were used to convey the food to the mouth; and the paper frills which adorn the modern cutlets, hams, and so forth were first used to obviate the soiling of the hands by the joints or portions.

Migratory Instinct Clings

Wild birds are said to retain their instinct for migration even though the eggs are hatched in an incubator and the birds never see other of their kind.

Coloring of Salmon

The pink coloring of the flesh of the salmon is believed to be due to the fact that these fishes feed largely on a kind of shrimp of similar hue.

Supervisors Appoint County Auditor

[illegible] proposed for the county purchasing agent and auditor. He said he [illegible] that there were three men [illegible] in the board who were competent to act as auditors and he was [illegible] accord with the plan to appoint an outsider to the job. He [illegible] the board of supervisors were [illegible] elected body and he believed the [illegible] have some faith in their ability [illegible] it was his opinion that the [illegible] should keep in its control such [illegible] as were vested in the board. Mr. Elsworth said that he was in favor of continuing the board of auditors as in the past and if that plan were followed he would not hesitate [illegible] voting for three Democratic members of the board to make up that committee. He said he believed in the idea that "to the victor belongs the spoils" but he could not agree to the appointment of an outsider.

Differences Aired Thoroughly

Supervisor George said that the resolution offered followed the recommendation of the state comptroller and the new plan provided the same salary but would entail expenses of but one man instead of three as did the old plan of three auditors.

Supervisor Wright said that naturally the members would rather keep among themselves the job if it could legally be done.

Supervisor Stanbrough spoke next. He said the supervisors were elected to conduct the county affairs and the affairs of the county had been conducted in an economical and proper manner and so as to give Ulster county a unique record. The affairs of the county had been so conducted that it had been possible to work the county out of a heavily bonded position until there was no bonded indebtedness now.

Supervisor Terwilliger next spoke. He said that Mr. Elsworth had said the Democrats had voted with the resolution last year. He said at that time they had asked as to the legality of the resolution and it had been said that it was legal.

"Well," said Mr. Elsworth, "we were so good we convinced you it was legal."

This brought forth a laugh and it appeared that the differences had been thoroughly aired and a vote would be taken. Supervisor Cullen asked that the resolution be identified and a vote taken. Supervisor Stanbrough asked that the resolution be re-read. Then Supervisor George said, "why re-read the resolution, I ask for a vote."

Supervisor Terwilliger said that the resolution appeared to be the same as last year except that there would be but one auditor.

Mr. Boice of Ulster then said he believed that three heads were better than one. He objected to giving one man full charge of all bills and things in the county. "It don't look right to me," said Mr. Boice. "it gives one man absolute power."

Supervisor Shults then stated that the resolution under discussion would be followed by another which would authorize the chairman to appoint a committee of three members of the board to act on a committee to check up on the auditor. This committee he said would work without a salary. Supervisor Boice remarked that there was now too much work without salary.

Supervisor Stanbrough said that the plan gave one man absolute control of disbursements and expenses and he thought three heads better than one. The county's business he said was too large for one man to handle.

Supervisor Wright then asked whether under the old system three men always audited the bills and made the purchases or did one man do it.

Chairman Markle said that the legality of the resolution had been looked up and "we are satisfied."

Resolution Adopted 21 to 12.

The matter finally went to a vote and the resolution was adopted by a vote of 21 to 12. The following voting in the negative: Boice, Cashdollar, Dusinbere, Elsworth, Haynes, Kelly, Myers, Rowe, Stanbrough, Van Wagenen, Voss and Wilkin.

The next matter brought forth much discussion and controversy. Supervisor Osterhoudt moved that five members of the board be appointed by the chairman to act as committee on Purchasing Agent and County Auditor. Later this was changed limiting the committee to three. It was explained that this has been an error and three had been the intention of the original resolution.

Mr. Elsworth moved that the members of the committee serve without pay.

Again Mr. Ewig asked permission to speak. He said the resolution did not mention any salary and consequently it was not necessary to move that they serve without pay.

Supervisor George said he did not object to the motion of Mr. Elsworth but it was unnecessary.

Committee to Serve Without Pay.

"Let's get down to brass tacks", said Mr. Elsworth. He asked whether there were to be three or five men on the committee and it was determined the number should be three. Then Mr. Elsworth pressed his motion that the committee serve without pay.

Supervisor Shults said that the amendment was all right but the committee should get reasonable expenses. He moved that they get expenses. Supervisor George said that was acceptable and Supervisor Osterhoudt who offered the original resolution said that it was correct, that the committee serve without compensation except expenses. Mr. Osterhoudt said he would accept that amendment to his resolution.

Complications still piled up. As soon as Mr. Osterhoudt accepted the amendment that it be included in the resolution that the committee serve without pay Mr. Elsworth moved to amend the resolution that the committee "serve without expenses." Mr. Elsworth said he did not want anyone to put words in his mouth he wanted the resolution to provide that no salary or expenses be paid this committee. Finally Mr. Osterhoudt accepted the amendment of Mr. Elsworth that the committee serve without pay or expenses.

This brought forth more comment. Supervisor Wright said he thought a man should have at least his mileage. He said this was the first time in four years he had ever heard the chairman of the old board object to anything and said that formerly members awoke from a sleep and voted "aye" so smooth did things flow.

Supervisor Terwilliger injected the comment that more information had thus far been given from the floor than in the four years prior to January first.

The resolution as it finally went to a vote was that there be no salary or expenses for the committee on purchasing agent and auditor. It was adopted 32 to 1, Supervisor Stanbrough voting in the negative.

Four Members on Rights of Way

Supervisor Feeney moved that the rights of way committee for 1934 and 1935 as appointed by the chairman be composed of four members instead of six as in the past. This it was explained would eliminate the expenses of two members.

Once more Mr. Ewig asked to be heard. He said the resolution differed from the past few years in two respects. First the resolution called for a reduction of two members in the committee. Two years ago the minority party had suggested that change but had been beaten but now listening to Taxpayers Association's appeals it had been reduced and another economy measure had been effected. The second change was in the manner of payment. Under the old form of resolution the county treasurer, he said, had been authorized to pay for property taken for highway purposes as soon as a deed was presented even though there was no money on hand to do so. In that instance the county treasurer was authorized to borrow money to pay the claim. Under the Democratic regime this will be changed and the county treasurer has no power to borrow unless specifically directed by an act of the board. In the event property is taken for highway purposes the owner will not be paid for the land taken unless there is a balance in the right of way fund, until such time as the board deems it proper to authorize the borrowing of such sum. The resolution to reduce the committee from 6 to 4 was unanimously adopted.

Another Bomb-shell

Next came another bomb-shell. Supervisor Shults moved that the services and employment of Frank Ten Eyck, Ulster County Sealer of Weights and Measures, be terminated and that the board proceed forthwith to appoint his successor. A vote was taken immediately and the resolution was adopted by a 18 to 15 vote. Those voting in the negative were: Armater, Boice, Cashdollar, Dusinbere, Elsworth, Haynes, Heitzman, Kelly, Myers, Pine, Rowe, Stanbrough, Van Wagenen, Voss and Wilkin. While the resolution to evict Mr. Ten Eyck went through apparently without debate subsequent action to fill the place brought up much controversy.

Supervisor Hulsair offered a resolution that three members of the board be appointed by the chairman to act as a Grade Crossing Elimination committee to work with the State and Railroads in grade crossing elimination negotiations, the three members of the committee to be allowed the same compensation and allowances as members of the committee on Purchase of Rights of Way. This resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the 33 members of the board.

Supervisor Simpson moved that the chair appoint a committee of eight, of which the chairman shall be one member, to act as a Legislative Committee to inspect proposed legislation which may be of interest or affect the county. The resolution provided that the committee be provided with a daily list of bills by the Assemblyman and Senator from the district. Unanimously adopted.

To Investigate CWA

Supervisor David offered the following resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate claims of unfairness in the manner of employing men under the CWA.

Whereas, Ulster county has taken advantage of the recommendations and offer of the Federal Government in the adoption of the Civil Works Administration Program in Ulster county, and in accordance with such recommendations and regulations the Civil Works Administrator has duly appointed a committee having control and jurisdiction over the Civil Works Administration Program in Ulster county, and

Whereas, numerous complaints and criticisms had been made by different persons charging discrimination in giving employment, failure to give employment to those entitled thereto, giving employment to persons not entitled thereto and further in that it has been charged that employment is conditioned upon the applicants' political beliefs or affiliations, and

Whereas, it would serve the interest of the residents of Ulster county at large to investigate and inquire into the truth of said charges and to examine into the facts and circumstances of the operation of the Civil Works Administration Program in Ulster county, or so much thereof as is within the jurisdiction of the Board of Supervisors and the respective townships within Ulster county, so that any irregularities or illegal practices might be properly brought to the attention of the Federal Civil Works Administrator, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Ulster county be and he hereby is empowered to appoint a special committee constituted by five members of the Board of Supervisors, at least two of whom shall be of the minority party, which committee shall cause an investigation, examination and inquiry to be made into the conduct of the Ulster County Civil Works Administration Program and to look and inquire into the alleged charges and complaints of discrimination and other illegal practices and to report its findings and the results of its inquiry and investigations to the Board of Supervisors with all possible haste, and it is further

Resolved, that the said committee shall have the power and right to conduct any necessary hearings in public or in private and to examine any person or witnesses having knowledge concerning any of the facts bearing upon the investigation as well as any other member of the Ulster County Committee in charge of said program.

Elsworth Explains His Vote.

Supervisor Elsworth was recognized and said that he was going to vote for the resolution but wanted to explain his vote. He said he was not entirely in accord with the preamble of the resolution. He said that the text of the resolution insinuated or reflected upon the members of the County CWA committee. These men he said were broadminded, honest, public spirited men beyond reproach. He did not want anyone to think he was voting for the resolution because he desired these men to be under investigation and as he believed the language of the resolution would indicate. He said he was voting for the resolution because any light which might be thrown on the subject of employment under the CWA plan would be welcome. At this time he said the temperament of the people was unusual, especially the working man. There were numerous complaints heard, many had come to him complaining of unfair selection of men and failure by others to get work. In many cases the method of taking men had been fair but because one man or some men were not called they charged unfair practices. Some he said charged it was necessary to be a Democrat to get work, others charged that it was necessary to be a Republican. Many men made application for work and before their turn came to be called they had conjured up in their minds some feeling of discrimination which might or might not be with foundation. If these complaints were investigated it would throw some light on the matter.

After Mr. Elsworth's remarks the resolution was adopted unanimously.

Then a ten minutes recess was called by the chair to give time to make appointments to standing committees.

Moves To Re-consider Vote.

Following the recess Mr. Elsworth pressed his former motion to re-consider the vote taken at last Thursday's meeting on the appropriation for clerk hire.

Chairman Markle said "we will take a roll call on the question to reconsider."

Supervisor Feeney said, "Mr. Chairman, it is not necessary for a roll call".

To that Mr. Markle said, "We are going to call the roll" and a roll call it was.

Supervisor Shults stated that the matter had been a mistake. It had been intended to appropriate $3,050 for the salary of the deputy clerk and for the assistant clerks and when the resolution had been drawn it was not known that the deputy clerk's salary had already been provided for. The intention was to spend $1,400 for a deputy clerk and $1,650 for extra clerks.

Supervisor Cullen said the idea had been to hire a deputy and two assistants at a combined salary of $3,050 the same as in the past.

A vote was called for on the motion to reconsider and it was unanimously passed.

The chair started on with the next business when Mr. Elsworth again asked to be heard. He said the last motion had been to reconsider the previous vote and that did not remove from the record the vote. Another vote would be required. He said he did not question the intent of the board but the procedure was bad and left on the record an appropriation of $3,050 for assistant clerks. He called attention of the chair to the necessity of going back to the original resolution for a rescinding vote. The last vote had been only to reconsider the action of the previous meeting and did not remove that action from the record.

Supervisor Cullen after considerable discussion between members finally put a resolution before the meeting which amended the original resolution by substituting the figures $1,650 instead of the $3,050. The rescinding resolution was adopted as was the amendment changing the appropriation to $1,650.

During the discussion several new resolutions were presented and withdrawn, amendments were made and withdrawn in an effort to straighten out the record.

Snyder County Sealer

Then Mr. Shults moved that George B. Snyder of Saugerties and Olive be named County Sealer of Weights and Measures for two years at the same salary as now exists. Mr. Cullen seconded but before it went to a vote Mr. Elsworth again perplexed many of the board members by offering an amendment to the Shults resolution and calling for the substitution of the name of Frank Ten Eyck instead of Mr. Snyder. Supervisor Stanbrough seconded the Elsworth motion and then another argument started.

Supervisor Williams said this should be a separate resolution. Supervisor George said the resolution should be presented in writing. Another man said this was simply placing two men as candidates before the house and the members should vote for the man they would like to fill the office.

A vote was called for when Mr. Finch arose and said he would like to have the amendment "thrown out." The amendment was properly before the house and was not thrown out so Mr. Finch asked instruction as how to vote. "If I vote yes on the amendment I am voting for Ten Eyck, is that it?" said Finch. The chairman said, "if you vote yes you vote for Ten Eyck and if you vote no you vote against him." Mr. Finch said, "that it all I want to know" and sat down.

A vote was taken on the amendment to substitute Mr. Ten Eyck's name for that of Mr. Snyder and the amendment was lost by a vote of 17 to 16, Chairman Markle voting to defeat the amendment.

Then the original resolution was voted upon and again Mr. Finch asked who he was voting for. It was explained that he was voting for the resolution of Shults appointing Mr. Snyder County Sealer. This resolution was unanimously adopted.

Chairman Markle then announced the following committees:

Committee on Equalization: Supervisors Shults, Markle, Williams, Wright, Terwilliger, George, McDowell, DeWitt and Myers.

Committee on Form and Footing of Assessment Rolls: Supervisors Davis, Simpson and Schick.

Committee on Town and County Accounts: [illegible] Dusinbere.

Committee on Highway Officials: Supervisors DeWitt, George, Osterhoudt.

Committee on CWA: Supervisors Markle, Cullen, McDowell, Boice, Pine.

Tribute to Judge Fowler.

Supervisor Osterhoudt asked what the idea of appointing Judge Fowler on the Tuberculosis Hospital committee was, whether it was in recognition of his services and as a tribute to the efforts in securing the new hospital.

Chairman Markle said that it was. Great credit was due Judge Fowler for the work which he did in bringing about the construction of the present new hospital building.

Supervisor Osterhoudt said, "How about pay and expenses?" Mr. Markle said that the judge would serve as an honorary member, without pay or expenses.

Then on motion of Supervisor Cullen, seconded by Supervisor Armater, the session was adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

COYKENDALL RENAMED BY COLUMBIA TRUSTEES.

Frederick Coykendall, nineteenth chairman of the Columbia University board of trustees since the reorganization of the institution in 1787, was reelected Monday at the 150th annual meeting of the group. Marcellus Hartley Dodge, eleventh occupant of the clerkship, was also reelected, and Ambrose D. Henry was elected associate clerk.

Five vacancies in standing committees, caused by expiration of terms, were also filled. The Rev. Dr. Frederic S. Fleming succeeded Rogers Bacon on the committee on education. Rogers Bacon succeeded Gano Dunn on the committee on buildings and grounds. Thomas J. Watson succeeded Willard V. King on the committee on finance. Willard V. King succeeded Stephen Baker on the committee on honors, and Frederic R. Coudert was reappointed to the committee on legal affairs.

Where Do You Get Them?

A dollar bill to me is just
A ticket to pay the debts I must,
Or else something else to put away
Against the coming rainy day.
But as I read the current news
I gather quite a lot of views
About it, with a seem complicated,
Or else I'm very addle-pated.
It should be high, it should be low,
And gold affects it so and so;
But why about this should I fret,
As long as penny I can get?

Tips on CONTRACT

Deceitful Doubles

By TOM O'NEIL

When one side has reached a game contract after showing two suits, an opponent sometimes will double in the hope of driving the enemy back to the other suit, which he can set.

From Boston comes a hand in which such a plot was foiled through the alertness of one of the contracting side. Here was the hand:

In the auction, after three passes, West bid one spade because of his distribution. North overcalled with two clubs. East and South passed, and West bid two hearts, which, after a pass by North, East carried to three. Came a pass South and West bid four hearts, which was doubled South.

Vulnerable West, in fear of the consequences of his light opening, thought there might be a save in spades and called four of them, which South was delighted to double, his ruse of the heart double having succeeded.

Dr. E. E. O'Neil, sitting East, detected the ambush, however, and carried the contract to five hearts. South did not double this time, and the plot failed. Its only success was a heart finesse against South, which lost. The finesse had to be taken anyway.

North elected a club for the opening lead. The trick was taken in the East hand and a loss in hearts to the ace was taken immediately.

North cashed another club, which West took with the king. West [illegible] trump and forthwith lost a diamond.

A diamond return was ruffed West and then diamonds and spades were cross-ruffed.

At the end of the East hand was entered by trumping a spade. Three good diamonds captured the last three tricks.

West made five hearts. At spades the set could have been 2,100 points.

NEW OIL FOR MOTORS ANNOUNCED BY GULF

Home-owners who realize the need for a special oil for electric motors will welcome the new lubricant announced today. This product, labeled Gulf Electric Motor Oil, is especially designed for the motors of electric refrigerators, the motors and bearings of washing machines and mangles, automobile generators, and portable electric drills. This lubricant is brand new and entirely different from anything else on the market. Although oils designed for more general uses have been used to lubricate electric motors, Gulf Electric Motor Oil is the first lubricant made specifically for this purpose. A mineral oil of the highest quality refined by the exclusive Alchlor process, it furnishes perfect lubrication at all times, will not form sludge or gum, and will feed readily to the bearings.

Many Shooting Stars Destroyed

It has been estimated that daily from 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 of shooting stars are destroyed by our atmosphere, and taking the average as 15,000,000, it is probable that our earth, revolving upon its orbit, destroys 5,250,000,000 of them yearly. Of course, each of these consumed shooting stars leaves behind it a small amount of dust, which settles gradually to the ground. Such an amount of star dust would add annually about 15,000 tons to our world's weight. However, even in a century this accumulation of dust would not amount to much.

Talks to parents

Like Father Like Son

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

A boy's attitude toward women throughout his life will be largely influenced by his father. If he sees his father speak rudely to his mother, or laugh at her opinions; if he notices any contempt in his father's attitude, any lack of respect and admiration, the child is very apt to go through life with the same point of view, not only toward his mother, but toward all women.

If, on the other hand, the father not only respects the mother, but insists that his children and everyone who comes in contact with her express the same respect; if he considers her opinions, and not only acknowledges but takes for granted the equality between the sexes, which makes of marriage a partnership instead of a contest or a protective society, the boy will reflect the joy and freedom of such a relationship throughout his life.

It is essential for a boy to feel respect for his mother if he is to grow into a normal human being. In childhood and early youth she is, generally of necessity, the center of his life, the pattern by whose directions he molds himself. If this ideal is injured, or despised, he is a very poor little boy indeed.

Often, influenced by school mates or by some outside force, there will come a moment when the small boy is rude or defiant of his mother. And it is here that the father can and should interfere very decidedly. Perhaps it will be the boy's first, perhaps his last thrashing, but father and son will have greater mutual understanding and respect for ever after if the punishment, whatever it is, is administered promptly and severely.

It may seem a strange way to teach respect, but it is the father's attitude more than the punishment that counts.

Top Notch's Shock

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"What are we going to do?" quacked Mrs. Quacko Duck nervously as her feathers fluttered.

The bellowing came louder and clearer. It seemed that just a door divided Puddle Muddle's creatures from the terrible beast outside.

"It's a wild creature of some sort," shivered Top Notch, the Rooster, "and it must be a large beast or it couldn't have such a big voice."

"I'll discover what it is," bravely cawed Christopher Columbus Crow.

"Oh, no, don't open the door," begged Rip, the Dog.

"It might be better to open it than to have the creature become so angry that he knocked in the door," replied Christopher.

"We've had enough of open doors," said Willy Nilly.

Willy Nilly looked but could see nothing, although he almost jumped through the window in fright when another great bellowing sound was heard.

"I'll look through the keyhole," suggested Top Notch bravely.

"That's a good idea," agreed Willy Nilly, "as the sound tells us the creature is directly outside."

So Top Notch peered through the keyhole and then he gave a shriek and a scream.

"What is it, Top Notch?" they all cried in alarm.

But Top Notch had fallen over from fear and shock.

"Water!" cried Willy Nilly. "We must get water for Top Notch."

He went to the faucet to draw some water and to his horror no water would come forth.

"The pipes have frozen," Willy Nilly said hopelessly.

Beach and Ball Gowns Have Much in Common

New York—Turn about is fair play. If beach clothes are going to borrow from ballroom finery, why isn't it just as feasible to adopt beach effects to ball gowns? The one illustrated is an excellent, rather extreme, example of the idea. If you are given to wearing the sort of thing that is calculated to "knock your eye out" you will be thrilled at the prospect of wearing a bandanna over nothing at all but yourself, thus allowing your back to be exposed to the glow of electrics instead of the sun which was the original purpose of the arrangement so expertly copied.

There seem to be two definite and distinct schools of dress, evening wear that it. One prescribes the covered shoulder, covered either by a sleeve or bertha arrangement. The other subscribes to the uncovered shoulder, and manages to stick to its ideals even when the dress has sleeves. Sounds difficult, but in reality it is very simple and very charming. All one has to do is to drape the armhole exposing the shoulder. Then you can round out a section of the sleeve bordering it with rhinestones or a sparkling band. If you prefer you can have a sleeve with an open seam or a sleeve so that the arm is partly visible.

There are also gauntlet sleeves, held up by an elastic and slipped on over one's wrist. This is a practical idea in a season when so many gowns are made to be worn with or without sleeves. There is only one rule to go by in regard to the shoulder. If one subscribes to the first school, cover the shoulder well and thoroughly. If to the second, leave the shoulder entirely bare, resorting to the dropped shoulder or necklace line.

A BEACH-BALL GOWN

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild

An evening gown from Alix Barton shows the wrapper skirt and scarf decollet that reminds one of St. Tropez beach clothes exalted to formality. This model is in black and gold Ottoman with self bows at back.

Satins, velvets, and supple material such as kidskin or the lovely pastel is appropriate.

Fashion Puts Her Foot Down

One designer in footwear expressed faith in the heelless shoe, particularly the sandal, in formal footwear to accompany "at home" and dinner costumes, formal afternoon wear indoors, and, of course, for the beach and morning costumes where it originally made its debut.

Not under any consideration to be featured as replacing the high heeled evening shoes with its flattering quality, the heelless sandal—frequently with an arch construction supporting the shank—is appropriate for highlighting from two viewpoints—chic and comfort.

Waffle pique in a colorful checked print makes the party dress worn by the top figure. Note the interesting double-effect collar, the lower one of which is in self-fabric and piped in brown to match the buttons.

Plaided gingham tissue fashions the center smock frock, which has pointed puffed sleeves and tiny white linen collar embroidered in red.

For party wear point d'esprit and georgette are united in the high-waisted frock with deep cape collar pointed at front. The belt is of blue satin ribbon.

Figures at right—

The Tyrolean influence is very evident in this twin-print dimity, which has a picturesque guimpe that is smocked and piqued in contrast. Note the laced effect at front.

Cottons with hat to match make attractive gifts. The dress below is of embroidered sephyr with the puffed sleeves banded to give the effect of being buttoned-on. The smocking is in brown and yellow.

Kingston: "Going Hollywood." With the popular Bing Crosby crooning his heart out through most of the picture, with Marion Davies petite and attractive, Stuart Erwin laughable and well cast, and Fifi D'Orsay the female menace, this singing, dancing, crooning, comedy show proves to be spectacular and enjoyable screen fare. There is a plot and everything, for Mr. Crosby, as up and coming singer in love with Marion Davies, falls under the spell of Fifi D'Orsay, and almost wrecks the whole show. But as is natural in movie romances, Mr. Crosby finds himself in time to avoid trouble. Some of the most eye filling sets and backgrounds ever designed for a talkie musical are to be seen in this production, and with the help of scores of beautiful and talented dancing girls, the show turns into a spectacle worth seeing. Mr. Crosby steals the show however, and those who enjoy hearing the young man croon, will find this show much to their choosing.

Orpheum: "Cocktail Hour" and "The World Gone Mad." A young girl seeks life in the first talkie and finds it in strange places. Bebe Daniels as the girl who grows tired of conventional living and who seeks an outlet through travel, does a good job. Randolph Scott and Sidney Blackmer are also in the cast. "The World Gone Mad" is a modern story of the depression and the lure of gold. Mary Brian, Pat O'Brien and Evelyn Brent are in the cast.

Broadway: "Ann Vickers". The book that caused so much discussion from the pen of Sinclair Lewis has been made into a screen drama with Irene Dunne in the starring role. The cast also has Walter Huston, Conrad Nagel, Edna May Oliver and Bruce Cabot. The story has to do with the life of a social worker who has her own ideas about love and marriage. Trouble after trouble, difficulty after difficulty arises because of her unconventional manner of living. The acting is well worth seeing, the story itself a rap at convention, and the action moves just a bit slowly. Good entertainment for the adult mind.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Should Ladies Behave". Alice Brady and Lionel Barrymore, along with Mary Carlisle and Conway Tearle act out a domestic drama that has its moments of rare amusement and clever situations. How to keep a young and flighty daughter from marrying a suave and middle aged man is the theme of the drama. Well acted and enjoyably directed, this talkie should appeal to those who enjoy acting rather than action.

Orpheum: Same.

Broadway: "Deluge". S. Fowler Wright wrote "Deluge" several years ago, and now this popular story of a great imagination comes to the screen, slightly changed of plot, but with the main idea intact. The world suddenly runs into catastrophe on a certain day and date, and the continents of Europe and America are sunk by tidal waves, earthquakes and storm. Everything crumbles, millions of lives are lost, and after the damage is done, nothing is left but a few survivors of a once great civilization. Primitive instincts return to these few survivors, for the search for food becomes the paramount issue in their existence and the survival of the fittest is the order of the day. The sinking of New York city, the crumbling of mountains, the disappearance of continents into the sea are all brought to the screen in this talkie. Peggy Shannon, Sidney Blackmer, Lois Wilson and Fred Kohler are among the survivors after the catastrophe, and they all seem pretty small against a background of a world gone mad.

'Electric Chair' Idea Used For Killing Bacteria In Milk

What amounts to an "electric chair" for milk bacteria is shown here with Prof. Alcee J. Gelpi, co-inventor of a new process of pasteurizing milk by passing it between carbon electrodes.

Baton Rouge, La., (AP)—Experiments conducted co-operatively by Louisiana State University and Michigan State College have led two scientists to conclude that electrocution of milk bacteria is preferable to ordinary methods of pasteurization for eliminating lacteal organisms.

Working simultaneously, Professor Alcee J. Gelpi of Louisiana and E. D. Devereaux of Michigan are convinced the electrocution method is more efficient and that it does not impair the quality of the milk.

The process, as explained by Professor Gelpi, consists of running a continuous stream or column of milk through a rectangular and narrow chamber with carbon electrodes in the side walls. Application of current sets up sufficient heat to reduce the bacteria count about 99 per cent.

Gelpi found reason to believe, after painstaking experimentation, that the destruction of the endospores is due to the heat they develop within themselves rather than heat created in the medium surrounding them.

Seeking to compare the relative resistance of common spore-forming organisms, the Louisiana professor subjected them to a series of laboratory tests involving the ordinary methods of pasteurization and the new electric method. The results obtained were markedly in favor of the new process, he reported.

Los Angeles police rescued a stray deer from an attack of dogs and took the animal to the police station to be booked as "Jane Doe" under a charge of vagrancy.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

For the Smart Matron

8087—Printed velvet was used for this distinctive model. Pipings of satin give it a smart touch. You will like the slenderizing lines and attractive seaming with just enough flare in the straight-line skirt to give ease in movement.

The raglan shoulder lines are especially becoming to the large woman, as is also the simple effective closing on the waist front.

Faille, broadcloth, sheer woolen or crepe is also suggested for this style.

Designed in 9 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 46 will require 4⅞ yards of 39-inch material.

To finish with bias binding or piping as picture in the large view, will require 3 yards 1½ inches wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Budget Needs, Dollar Value —Uncle Sam's Balancing Task

By FRANK I. WELLER.

Washington (AP)—What effect federal budget requirements of $10,000,000,000 within the next six months is going to have on the "dance of the dollar" is a vexing question on Capitol Hill.

On January 5 the RFC gold-purchase price had completed its twelfth day at $34.06 an ounce compared with the statutory $20.67. The previous high had been $34.01 for an even longer time on December 7. Between the two dates the gold value of the dollar declined from 61.1 cents to 63.5 cents.

Gold Content Compromise?

With unprecedented peace-time borrowing ahead, there seems to be more sentiment among conservatives and inflationists alike for the President to call their spokesmen together on a common ground namely a compromise on the gold content of the dollar. They say that no more uncertainty would bring "fear frozen" deposits out for investment.

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma says there is a possibility of Mr. Roosevelt cutting the gold value of the dollar to 50 cents by increasing the price of gold to $41.34 an ounce. For the sake of stability, James P. Warburg, a former monetary adviser to the president, and other champions of "orthodox money," have indicated willingness to go along with a 50-cent dollar.

Economy as Credit Guarantee.

At present one of Mr. Roosevelt's closest advisers appears to be Prof. George F. Warren, who would tie the purchasing power of the dollar to the rise and fall in the general commodity price level. The President's message to Congress was interpreted as indicating he had no intention of steering away from that course.

Rather, it appeared, he sought to entrench it by making federal statutory economy a guarantee for government credit. He hoped to borrow more by keeping normal expenditures at a minimum. Some believe he hoped, too, to head off congressional action for an increase in veterans' compensations or full payment of the bonus—which might necessitate some outright inflation.

The approaching congressional campaign is considered a strong inducement for those who will be candidates to advocate payment of the bonus.

To The Money Markets

Uncle Sam, faced with the prospect of unprecedented peace-time borrowing to meet regular and emergency needs of the federal budget, may turn to federal reserve member banks, among other lending sources. Listed above are statistics pertaining to this potential market for his securities.

"Profit" From Inflation.

In that event, some inflationists say, Mr. Roosevelt could declare a 50-cent dollar, impound a treasury "profit" of $3,600,000,000 on reserve bank gold and issue $3,000,000,000 of greenbacks against it.

There is a much different attitude at the treasury. In the first place, it is going to borrow $6,000,000,000 and not $10,000,000,000. That other $4,000,000,000 represents maturities which usually are wiped out by trading the bondholder new paper for the old.

Nor is it anticipated that the $6,000,000,000 will be borrowed all at once. The practice is to issue bonds, notes or bills as money actually is needed.

The last issue was for $950,000,000 and was oversubscribed three times at 2¼ per cent. The "public" is chiefly banks and corporations with idle surplus reserves. Such reserves are said to be stacked high in financial institutions for lack of commercial outlet.

How Banks Buy Bonds.

Banks buy government bonds by subscribing at the treasury and earmarking currency in their own vaults for government account. It is drawn upon as needed, frequently months after it was subscribed.

On December 27 the federal reserve banks had $2,432,000,000 of government securities, nearly two billions more than in December, 1929, and member banks had well over an additional $1,000,000,000. They are counted upon heavily to support any new issue lest failure to absorb it lessen the value of those they already own.

Federal reserve member banks had an excess surplus of $800,000,000 on January 3. Member banks in 90 cities on December 27 had $10,866,000,000 of demand deposits, $4,399,000,000 of time deposits and $825,000,000 of government deposits. Money in circulation totals around $5,800,000,000.

All these sources could contribute to the purchase of federal securities.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Cupid's Cupidity?

[illegible], N. J.—It was quite an [illegible] marriage of [illegible] May, N. J. [illegible] chancery court on [illegible] $262 in arrears on [illegible] first wife. Adams [illegible] the master: "If you [illegible] afford to pay the support [illegible] your first wife, how could [illegible] a second time? [illegible] economizing?"

"[illegible] it was, judge," was the re[illegible]. "I married my bookkeeper. I [illegible] pay her anyhow and I figured [illegible] well keep it in the family."

Would Boss His Own Police.

Lyon, France—Edouard Herriot, mayor of Lyon, is angry. The ministry of the interior has taken away from him the control of the city police force.

All the police forces of France were recently placed under the direct authority of the ministry by a decree, which M. Herriot asserts, was sprung upon them by surprise, and is a great mistake.

As a reprisal he proposes to suppress the 500 francs ($30), the city's contribution to the upkeep of each policeman.

Child Wears No. 35 Shoes.

St. Louis—Robert Wadlow's shoes are attracting more attention at the convention of the National Shoe Retailers here than any other pair on display.

Robert's shoes, part of the exhibit of a St. Louis manufacturer, are size No. 35. They were made on a special last at a factory cost of $30.

Fifteen years old, 7 feet 10½ inches tall and weighing 360 pounds, Robert, known as the "Alton School Boy Giant," came over from his Illinois home yesterday to attend the convention and attracted even more attention than his shoes.

A Healthy Appetite.

Chicago—Alimony is not to be eaten.

This was the ruling of Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort, who ordered under threat of a jail sentence, that Frank Cichow cease his attempts to eat up the alimony of his divorced wife, Elizabeth.

She complained that Frank appeared at her home at dinner time each Sunday to make weekly alimony payments of $10 and then insisted on dining with her, attempting to eat $10 worth of food.

The court instructed her attorney to prepare a contempt order if Frank does this any more.

Less Dollars For "Old Country."

Dublin—In many homes in the Free State a gloom was cast over the Christmas festivities by the big drop in the contents of the "American letters" owing to the depression in the states. The approximate figures to date show that money orders to the value of £199,000 (currency $1,009,925) have arrived here in 65,000 letters. Last Christmas the sum was £246,000 in 100,000 letters.

Pick And Shovel Chiseler.

Cresson, Pa.—A pick and shovel thief brought tragedy to 81 CWA employes. The culprit stole all the picks and shovels at a road construction job, throwing the CWA employes out of work.

Oil in Whale's Nose

Scientists state that priceless oil cargoes are carried in a whale's nose. The fore part of sperm houses air conditioning and a pumping system similar to man-made mechanisms.

California's division of state lands estimates the value of the oil in the state pool at Huntington beach as in excess of $50,000,000.

For 1934 NASH HITS A NEW HIGH!

Individually-Sprung Front Wheels Optional On All Models

A NEW HIGH IN SMARTNESS! A NEW HIGH IN LUXURY! A NEW HIGH IN POWER! A NEW HIGH IN VELVETY RIDING QUALITY!

RESULT: A new high in popularity. Biggest November since 1929! Biggest December since 1926!*

Step inside a new Nash. The fine interior luxury of the car fairly puts a sparkle in your eye. You'll find the instrument panel downright fascinating. And as you look through the windshield, you are sure to think the hood is the longest hood you've ever seen on any car.

Right away you want to get going. Right away you anticipate the thrill of this car in action. And what a thrill it is—with its Twin Ignition valve-in-head motor—with two spark plugs per cylinder stepping up power and cutting down fuel consumption!

And how you'll enjoy the Nash built-in clear-vision ventilating system ... the coincidental starter ... the individually-sprung front wheels, optional at slight extra cost ... the finger-tip ease of handling the car ... the toe-tip ease of equal-action brakes!

The only way to keep from wanting a Nash is to shut your eyes when you see one, and positively refuse to drive one!

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 9 [illegible] pulled up a bit today [illegible] all the tobaccos and [illegible] ing shares [illegible] sentiment apparently [illegible] gerely [illegible] a few points.

[illegible]

Myers B jumped 6 points, American Tobacco B and Reynolds B around 2. These lost part of their gains later. Other equities came out of their doldrums and followed the tobaccos at [illegible] pace. [illegible] fairly steady. [illegible] The dollar sagged and [illegible] in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds showed some improvement, although U. S. government issues were still a little uneasy.

[illegible] cigarette group, [illegible] Telephone got up 2 and [illegible] and Western Union advanced about 2 each. Others, up [illegible] fractions to more than a point, included Westinghouse, U. S. Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, [illegible] Consolidated Gas, [illegible] Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, U. S. Smelting, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Sears Roebuck and N. Y. Central.

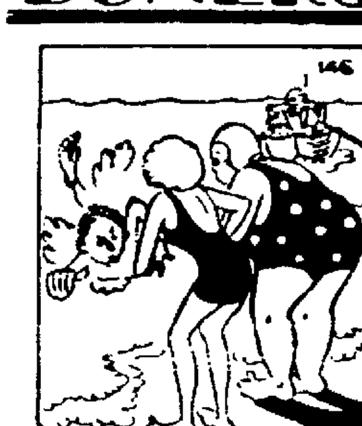

[illegible] that increased quotas for United States products had been obtained from [illegible] France and Great Britain was cheering to the followers of foreign trade indices. Hope was expressed that similar quota agreements would be made with other nations that are now holding somewhat aloof in their commercial relations with America.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Jan. 9.—The Christmas entertainments at the Reformed Church were well performed, though last minute changes in songs were made, the young ladies and young men did well. Santa, too, was there, but this time it was not the jolly round Santa, but a tall lean one. The Christmas gifts were well chosen by both Sunday school and teachers, and talented Miss Gertrude Short gave a wonderful piano solo. The program was a short one, but good. Candies were distributed to the whole attendance by the now-retired superintendent L. R. Connor.

Service will be held at the Reformed Church at 2:30 with the Rev. Van Tol conducting the sermon. A very cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services. Sunday school at 1:30 with the new superintendent, V. H. Sachar, Sr., in charge, who hopes that with the kind cooperation of his assistant, Mrs. Charles Signor, and all the Sunday school teachers who are to remain a successful year may be had. Anyone who wishes to join this Sunday school is assured a hearty welcome. All the friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Connor are very sorry to learn of their retirement. Both have been ardent church workers for many years and will be keenly missed. Mr. Connor has accepted a position as a station master some distance away and will therefore move to another town, which change his friends hope will be beneficial to him. All are wishing him the very best of good fortune.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Signor entertained at a New Year's dinner several guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Barley entertained several of her relatives at a Christmas dinner.

Victor Jr. and Gloria Sachar returned to school. The kiddies remained at home due to a severe cold.

The Christmas entertainment given by the Cottekill school children for the lower grades of the school was a pretty affair. The children had a fine time, and Santa was a real jolly old fellow and amused them greatly. Several parents were present.

The Jr. O. U. A. M. No. 168 will hold a card party on January 11 at 8 p. m. A very cordial invitation is extended to all by Benjamin Styles, councilor.

Mr. Wilson will be the new station master of the Cottekill railroad station in the near future, and will occupy the living quarters above the station. Meanwhile Oscar Beach will substitute.

Success at clerical work at the age of 21 is predicted relatively much better than success at mechanical work or mixed work, reports Irving Lorge of Columbia University.

Seventeen-Year Locusts

The seventeen-year locust is a cicada that is supposed to appear at these intervals. Eggs are laid in small limbs or twigs and after they hatch the larvae fall to the ground and burrow in—sometimes to a depth of 20 feet. At the end of a seventeen-year period of inactivity they emerge, mature and become full grown locusts. Their life span is from four to six weeks during which they mate and lay their eggs—and the cycle begins over again. Most of the damages by these insects are caused by the weakening of the limbs where the eggs are laid. Males alone produce the noisy din accompanying the visitation. Cycles of these insects overlap each other in such a way that some sections are visited oftener than once in seventeen years. For this reason every year is a locust year in some part of the country.—Pathfinder Magazine.

More than 3,000,000 acres of prickly pear-infested land in northeastern Australia was reclaimed through the importation from America of the grub Cactoblastis cactorum which eats the roots of the plant.

What It Costs State For Assembly Voting

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—The Macy-Hammond controversy in the New York assembly is costly.

To date, the assembly has been unable for five days to do any business and will continue unable to do business until a clerk is elected.

The expense of a legislative session is estimated roughly at about $15,000 a day. Some of this, of course is senate expense. The senate membership is approximately one third that of the assembly, so on a pro-rata business, the assembly daily cost to the state is about $1[illegible].

That means that in the first five days of the session the assembly deadlock has accounted for some $50,000 of the assembly's time, clerk hire, and other accessories.

Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of our dear husband and father, Andrew M. Dykes, who passed away one year ago today, January 9, 1933.

He was not loved by one, but all.
Yet had to go, when God did call.
His life was short, but oh, 'twas sweet,
We hope in heaven with him to meet.

(Signed) LOVING WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SON.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of Andrew Dykes, who passed away, 1 year ago today, January 9, 1933.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
And a memory fond and true.
Just a sight for the olden moments,
For the years, we spent with you.
We miss the happy golden hours,
And your smile, it was so fair.
We can't forget your willing friendship,
For we miss you everywhere.

(Signed) LESTER.

Shepherd Dog's Training Makes Him a Police Dog

All Shepherd dogs are not necessarily police dogs. Only after passing through the strenuous schooling and the rigid tests that qualify him is any dog allowed to enjoy the title. Not confined to Shepherds, says an authority in the Los Angeles Times, the honor is jointly shared with Dobermann-Pinschers, Airedales, Schnauzers and Collies.

America was introduced to the Shepherd shortly after the World war, in which his training was utilized to perfection.

Presumption is, of course, that all pastoral dogs descended from the original wild dog or wolf dog. It may be further presumed that formerly the union with the wolf contributed to many of their litters. If so, this must also be true of other breeds, for the Chowchow, Pomeranian, Elkhound, Schipperke, Alsatian, German sheep dog and the Esquimaux (or wolf dog) are members of the same Spitz family of northern dogs known as the Pomeranian group. Of these, the world-famous Esquimaux, sometimes called the Husky, is evidenced by his wild odor, absent in the Shepherd. He surely would not answer the role of tending sheep. And what profit can a dog such as a Shepherd, bred for beauty, shape and purity of strain, derive from union with a wolf or fox? Registration in the Alsatian club formed in 1891 made impossible the bringing of any further wolf blood into the breed. His gait, coloring and erect ears may resemble those of the wolf, but the adding of these three likenesses, the broadcast "wolf, wolf, wolf," should not frighten one. It was merely an idle boast to raise the market value in the eyes of the simple.

Birds Guide Men to Honey

One of the most remarkable birds of the world is the African honey-guide, which directs human beings to bees' nests, in the expectation that it will be rewarded by a meal of the bees' grubs when the nest is opened. On beholding anybody approaching, the honey-guide hops from tree to tree before the wayfarer, fluttering excitedly to attract attention, and uttering a peculiar cry. What especially excites the bird is the appearance of a honey-badger, or ratel. Instinct teaches the birds to associate this beast with the discovery of bees' nests, the honey of which he, like the British badger, delights to eat. The birds know that by following him they are likely to come by a feast. And this may explain their behavior towards man—they expect him to be a honey-lover, too!—Answers Magazine.

An Old Clock

The clock in the Parish church at Rye, England, was started in 1515, was finished in 1560, and has been running ever since, except for the few times it was stopped for repairs. A well-known firm of clock makers has the contract to keep it going and it seems capable of running indefinitely. This is said to be the only clock in the world having a pendulum swinging through the roof and into the body of the church. For years its 1,500 pounds swung over the choir before it was discovered to be supported by only a 2-inch rusty nail.

Damage by Termites

The damage termites are able to do is almost beyond belief, especially to objects of wood. Hundreds of thousands might be at their destructive work in a house without the owner ever seeing them, for it is not until the damage is complete that their presence is detected. This is because they work inside the woodwork, eating it away until only a thin shell is left, and they are careful not to penetrate this.

Definition of "Flame"

A flame may be described as a body of burning gas or vapor. Burning or combustion results from the chemical reaction between the elements composing the fuel and the oxygen in the air. A simple flame consists of a luminous envelope surrounded by a body of unburned vapor and itself is surrounded by an invisible layer of gases produced by the burning.

CUBAN FACTS

Air View of Havana Harbor.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

POLITICAL and economic conditions in Cuba are of interest to the people of the United States not only because the island republic is a neighbor, but because millions of dollars of American capital are invested in Cuban commerce and industries, and because the island has become a popular American playground.

Like a gaily attired Spanish senorita, Cuba charms the eye; and the glamour of a lurid past, with its pages of piratical plundering, pomp, and high adventure with which it is so romantically linked, quickens interest from the moment it is sighted on the horizon.

The island presents many contrasts. Sea defenses of time-mellowed rock are relentlessly attacked by jealous waves; yet within these stern barriers are green, rolling hills dotted with royal palms. Luxurious valleys bursting with verdure are shadowed by towering mountains where rock and jungle stand guard in secondary defense against man's onslaught. Even today, more than one-third of its area remains primeval forest!

Summer days in Cuba's higher altitudes are so hot it would seem needless to lug along blankets. If mountaineering is the hobby; yet the nights are surprisingly cold.

It is an island of extreme wealth and dire poverty; a land of sugar, tobacco, exotic fruits, and agriculture; of mining, oil drilling, and business; of speeding airplanes, automobiles, and plodding oxcarts; a land of flashing-eyed senoritas and the soft, seductive perfume of the tropics.

Cuba is often called "the island of a hundred harbors," for it is literally snaggle-toothed with inlets and bays. These, together with its many keys, offered ideal hiding places supplied with fresh fruits and water to those navigators who knew their way about, while the broad expanse of the harbors of Havana, Santiago, Guantanamo and Cienfuegos, accessible only through narrow inlets, afforded the utmost protection for the less brave.

Crossroads for Shipping.

Today, with modern wharves and port equipment, vessels of any length or draft can be easily handled in several of the harbors, and many of the others will accommodate ships of more than average displacement.

Of the larger Latin-American republics, the island is nearest to Europe, and, next to Mexico, nearest to the United States. It is the crossroads for shipping between many ports of Europe or the United States and Central or South America.

If you could lift the island bodily and lay it on the United States, with the easternmost point, Cape Maisi, resting on New York City, you would find that the other tip, Cape San Antonio, would extend some miles beyond Chicago, or, if moved slightly to the north, would rest exactly on Milwaukee. The width varies from 25 to 124 miles. The island supports a population, including the Isle of Pines, of nearly 4,000,000 people.

This latter island, largest and most important of many that dot the Cuban coastline, lying to the south of the western end of Cuba, was named for the many varieties of pines that grow on it. Its chief claim to fame, however, is its excellent climate, its fine marble quarries, and its mineral springs.

Here it was that the Welsh firebrand, Sir Henry Morgan, and Cornelius (Pegleg) Jols came to assemble their men and harass the unhappy residents of those days.

To most people Cuba of course suggests sugar and tobacco. While these two commodities are the chief products, yet by no means unimportant are the mining districts, oil fields, asphalt deposits, and numerous other natural resources, including a delightful climate.

Sugar cane is grown throughout the island, but the province of Camaguey leads in its production, with Oriente second. More than half of the total sugar crop is provided by these two easternmost provinces.

While tobacco also may be grown almost anywhere on the island, three-quarters of the total crop is grown in Pinar del Rio province, at the extreme western end of Cuba, with Habana and Santa Clara provinces supplying the remaining one-quarter.

Habana Province Is Rich.

Habana province, although the smallest, is the richest and most industrial portion of the island. It has sugar mills, model dairy farms, grows tobacco, oranges, pineapples, and other fruits, and is rich in mineral resources. It is best known, however, for its cigar and cigarette factories. It supplies approximately half of Cuba's exports and consumes two-thirds of its total imports!

Like other countries, Cuba has undergone some painful economic and political experiences in the past few years, the old order depending perhaps too much on sugar values and tobacco for income, and importing most of the necessaries of life.

To the statistically minded, the importance of Cuba and the United States to each other may be seen by examining the figures relating to Cuba's foreign commerce. They show the United States as the largest factor in this exchange, with the United Kingdom coming second. In 1932 the United States took $57,482,000 of the $80,672,000 total exports of the island, and for the same year the total imports into Cuba amounted to $51,024,000, the United States supplying $27,653,000 of that amount.

Compare those figures with the 1927 statistics, which show total imports of $257,354,000 and exports from Cuba of $322,705,000!

On the other hand, American investments in 1927 were calculated at one and a half billion dollars; by 1932 this figure was raised to $1,750,000,000. The bulk of these investments are in sugar properties, but large sums also are in real estate, railroads, public utilities, and government bonds.

In view of the fact that the bulk of Cuba's foreign trade is with the United States and that the American monetary investments in the island are tremendous, whatever touches Cuba affects many Americans, and whatever happens in the United States affects Cuba.

We fought a war with Spain that cost many American lives and many millions of dollars, both at the time and in subsequent pensions to Spanish war veterans, in order to help Cuba gain her freedom and place her fairly upon the path of economic progress.

Years later an American tariff deeply affected the island.

Supplying Her Own Needs.

The Cubans point out that the tariff threw United States doors wide open to importation of sugar from the Philippines, where only 40 per cent of the total investment in the sugar industry is capital from the United States, and closed them in the face of Cuba, where the capital invested is 84 per cent from the United States.

Cuba formerly imported practically all of her flour and eggs from the United States. Under the depressed sugar prices she embarked upon a program of development of local industries and diversification of manufactures to supply her own needs. In 1927 she imported $8,692,000 worth of wheat flour from the United States; in 1932 she purchased only $2,948,000. For the same years the value of fresh eggs purchased in the United States dropped from $2,666,000 to zero; canned vegetables fell from $403,000 to $45,000; lard from $10,841,000 to $1,208,000, and so on—all decreases more or less directly traceable to the fact that the price of sugar fell from 2.69 cents per pound in 1927 to as low as .57 of a cent in May of 1932!

An evidence of this change is observed in the growth of home manufactures. Shirts, underwear, shoes, straw hats, and linen suits are being made on a scale never before known. A large American manufacturer of shirts and underwear, sensing the change, has erected a factory in Cuba to meet the demand for home products.

The production of cotton and rayon socks and stockings has become an important industry, and local manufacturers are turning out rayon garments for women.

The dried beef industry, which plays a major part in the island's food supply, is growing, and canning factories have recently been established for tomatoes, pineapples and other products. Two factories are engaged in making cans.

During normal times one can pass weeks traveling around the picturesque island, for there are some good roads. The beautiful rolling country, dotted with quaint, palm-thatched huts, and the stately royal palms, like huge feather dusters, are never-ending sources of delight. The open fields are eye-filling scenes of green, splashed here and there with other colors.

The new Central highway now spans the island from Pinar del Rio to Santiago, a total distance of 705 miles. It was built at a cost of $120,000,000 and is a fine piece of road. There are no railroad crossings, for all such points have been either over or underpassed, nor are gasoline stations permitted to establish pumps at the roadside. They must be set back far enough so that any vehicle stopping for service will be off the highway and cause no obstruction to traffic.

Palestine Grows Oranges

Palestine's importance as an orange growing country has advanced so rapidly, says a report by the British empire marketing board, that it is surpassed only by Spain, Italy and the United States.

Nose for Water

Thirsty camels in the desert often develop an almost unbelievable "nose for water." When given a free rein, they have been known to lead lost caravans straight to oases more than 100 miles away.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There will be no light glowing on the trees at the gates of white-walled Pickfair this Christmas season.

But Pickfair, dark except for scattered squares of electric brightness in the servants' rooms, will be carrying on its silently expressive role in the dramatic life story of its mistress and its former master.

The whole romance of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, from their marriage nearly 14 years ago to the final unhappy ending, can be told in terms of this spacious, homelike dwelling that through the years was the film colony's invariable answer to the comment that marital happiness seemed impossible in Hollywood.

A Partnership Then

It was a comfortable estate in Beverly Hills, purchased by Fairbanks and occupied as his home, when Mary Pickford came there as his bride. Together Mary and Doug supervised its renovation, gave it "a new dress" and new adornments to celebrate their own start in romance. Pickfair—Pick for Pickford and Fair for Fairbanks—shone splendidly in its new coat of white amid its rich setting of rolling lawns and luxuriant shrubbery.

The waters of its swimming pool reflected in other days many a gathering of notables, and Pickfair's spacious rooms offered warm hospitality to a long succession of distinguished visitors.

The house, many times renovated and enlarged, still is white and its setting still is green lawns and colorful gardens. The artistic treasures that Mary and Doug brought there remain as before. But Pickfair, beautiful as ever, will be somber this Christmas. Mary has gone to New York to consider plays. Doug is still in Europe, the divorce action has been filed. Gwen Pickford, Mary's niece who lives with her, is to join Mary in New York for the holidays.

Gay Last Year

Last Christmas was different. Pickfair was brilliant. Fairbanks had rushed home from abroad to join Mary for the celebration. There were friends around, callers, and a party. And Mary presented Doug with the latest improvement to Pickfair—A "western" room for whose furnishings she had scoured the pioneer towns.

But this Christmas season Pickfair will be "dark"—and its darkness and silence will express, more eloquently than words, what has befallen it.

"Banjo Itch," Dog Disease

Novice owners of dogs generally become convinced that their pet has fleas every time it scratches itself, but the strange and violent scratching contortions may be the result of "banjo itch," a rather prevalent skin disease among dogs. This skin infection, known scientifically as staphylococcus streptococcus, is one of the most common skin diseases among dogs. It is frequently referred to as "moist eczema" and is believed to result from an unbalanced glandular condition, calcium in the blood or a serious skin abrasion. The disease is a leveler of all dogdom and will attack the most pampered pet as well as the alley mutt.

Whales Deep Divers

Whales dive deeper than sea lions. The sea lions are not deep-diving animals, since their food is largely found on or near the surface. The depth to which sea lions ordinarily penetrate certainly does not exceed five fathoms and is generally much less. Some of the whales are very deep divers. There is a record of a specimen of a sperm whale found tangled in a cable at a depth of one-fourth of a mile, about 220 fathoms.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

"Prompted by the controversy now raging over returning the goal posts from the end lines to the goal lines where they stood from time immemorial prior to the fall of 1927, I looked back on my records and made a compilation of the number of goals from the field by drop-kicks and also by place kicks with the totals scored in each year from 1926 to date," writes Parke Davis, the sage of Easton, Pa.

"Here are the figures:

	Drop Kicks	Place Kicks	Total
1920	120	38	158
1921	82	32	114
1922	126	30	156
1923	130	90	220
1924	144	144	288
1925	101	100	201
1926	144	152	296
1927	26	34	60
1928	16	28	44
1929	16	44	60
1930	16	26	42
1931	9	12	48
1932	4	41	62
1933	7	55	62

Reduced 80 Per Cent.

"A study of this table," continues Mr. Davis, "reveals that the transfer of the goal posts from the goal line to the end line reduced the number of field goals for the season of 1927 by 80 per cent, and there it has remained approximately down to the present day.

"Two other impressive features of the table are the steadily diminishing number of field goals by drop-kicks under the present location of the goal posts and the steadily increasing number of field goals from placement.

"A third interesting fact reflected is the shorter length of the kicks, even allowing the goals kicked since 1926 the additional ten yards represented by the width of the end zone. Prior to 1927 the average length of goals from the field was 35 yards. Since and including that year the average length has fallen down to 28 yards."

Safety Measure.

There is a good deal of agitation among college leaders to have the goal posts restored to the goal-line for the season of 1934, although I doubt very much that the National Rules Committee will yield to this view. The committee still is primarily interested in keeping all possible safeguards against injuries, and the absence of the goal posts from the competitive zone is one of these safeguards.

The professional teams, with the uprights on the goal line, showed how much more important the field goal can become with the range shortened. Place-kickers and drop-kickers had field days in the National League, climaxed in the play-off game by three goals from field by Jack Manders of the Chicago Bears. The Bears won by 23-21.

Comforters Win In Extra Session

A foul shot by Ad Stumpf, tying the score at 35 all, just as the timer's whistle ended the game, made necessary an extra period in which the Comforter Missions scored seven points and defeated Pine Hill, 42-35, Monday night at Comforter Hall.

Stumpf was the mainstay in the Missions' attack, scoring 14 points and being responsible for many more by his accurate passing. Follette was a close second with 10. Cure and Rosa did the best shooting for Pine Hill, scoring most of the points on long shots from the center of the court.

Holy Name League Cage Games Tonight

The Holy Name Basketball League will get under way tonight at St. Mary's Hall with three games scheduled as follows:

Visitations vs. Ascensions, 7:30.
Shamrocks vs. Holy Name Five, 8:30.
Ramblers vs. Emeralds, 9:30.

Director David Long of the league requests captains to have their men ready to play at the hours scheduled so that games may start promptly. The schedule will be divided into halves, the winners of the first playing the victors in the second for the championship.

Phil Kelly's Field Wins for Counselors Over the Polish A. C.

St. Mary's Counselors came out on top over the Polish A. C. of Poughkeepsie at St. Mary's Hall Monday night when Phil Kelly, flashy little guard, dumped in a field shot in the last few seconds of play, giving his team the victory by the narrow margin of two points, 33-31.

The battle was a close affair from start to finish. At half time the Counselors led 18-14, but in the second they crept up closer to tie the score just before the contest ended and Phil Kelly saved the day for the home club. Herb Van Deusen, high scoring forward of the winning combination, led the individual point-makers with a total of 19 markers. For Poughkeepsie Waryas and Kampero were the leaders.

BOWLING SCORES

Thiel Hits High, 721.

During the match between the Immanuels and Lyceums, won by the former club in City League competition Monday night, Bill Thiel, anchor man of the victorious brigade, spilled the pins for high three game total, 721, a mark unsurpassed, as far as known, in the history of organized bowling here.

In turning in his high three game total of 721, Thiel also upset the record for single high, scoring 269 in the first game, surpassing his former mark of 267 and Gus Wiedemann's 268. Prior to Thiel's performance, Charley Thiel held the record for three games with a high of 678. Last night, Thiel's single scores were 269, 225 and 227 making the 721 total.

Besides Thiel's stellar performance, other outstanding bowlers last night were Harry Styles, E. Modjeska and Harry Studt, whose marks are listed in the following scores:

Too Much for Maxie, The King Won't Fight

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—The black eyes of Leaping Lena Levy, sister manager of her big brother, King Levinsky, smapped fire today as she bemoaned the loss of a fight with Max Schmeling, slated for the Chicago Stadium, February 16.

The proposed bout fell through last night after a row over the division of the purse.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the German, had demanded 37½ per cent, with the expectation that Levinsky would accept 22½ per cent, but Lena wouldn't stand for that.

The proposed Levinsky-Schmeling fight based on the expectations of Joe Foley, general manager of the Chicago Stadium Operating Company, figured to draw $55,000.

Rexalls Play Here Against Polish Five

Tangermuende Lost Its Chance to Be Capital

Tangermuende, Prussia, on the Elbe, in bygone centuries the residence of German emperors, is not Germany's capital today, notes a Prussian correspondent in the Chicago Tribune. In those days Emperor Charles IV of Germany had chosen the prosperous and flourishing city as his residence. The wealth of Tangermuende was mainly derived from its excellent beer produced within its wall. For its delicious taste and flavor it was famed throughout the reich and beyond its borders. The wealth accumulated with its beer exports, the city expanded in rich and splendid buildings. The Gothic town hall is one of the finest medieval structures in north Germany. The city walls, rising to a height of twenty feet, are still well preserved.

Emperor Charles, seeing all this wealth accumulating under his nose, hit on the idea of exacting a special beer tax from the prosperous brewers. The brewers dared defy the kaiser and refused to pay the tax. Emperor Charles and his court left the city in a huff, never to return there again. Tangermuende had missed its chance of becoming the German capital.

North carolina claims statistics prove its average family is larger than that of any other state.

POULTRY

IMPROPER TILTING MAY KILL CHICKS

Should Never Allow Eggs to Stand Small End Up.

About half of the losses from sterile eggs that fail to hatch during incubation are due to abnormal positions of the chicks in the shell and are to some extent preventable, according to Dr. T. C. Byerly of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The normal position of the chick before hatching is with the head near the air sac at the large end of the egg. The chick breathes the air in the sac before it pips the shell, but in case of an abnormal position the chick may die from suffocation.

The principal cause of abnormal positions of chicks in the shell is believed to be improper tilting of the eggs in the tray from the fifth to the fifteenth days of incubation. Eggs incubated with the small end up show the highest percentage of abnormal positions of chicks, and the department therefore recommends that eggs should never be allowed to stand in this position. Eggs in many commercial incubators are tilted at a 45-degree angle, with the large end up, which is believed to give fewer abnormal positions among the chicks than incubating them horizontally.

Experiments indicate that losses from abnormal positions of chicks in the shell may be reduced, though not entirely eliminated. An incubator tray was devised that maintains a position between the horizontal and 45-degree angle. The eggs were turned mechanically every 15 minutes and rotated on their long axis in an arc of 60 to 120 degrees but were never rolled over and over. Eggs in a similar experiment that were turned always in the same direction every 15 minutes showed a very heavy loss.

Close Inbreeding Likely to Affect Hatching Eggs

Close inbreeding tends to decrease hatchability of eggs. Continued mating of brother and sister for a few generations often results in eggs that will not hatch at all. Breeding cannot be overlooked if good hatches are to be obtained, says Successful Farming.

For the person who desires to produce good hatching eggs this season either for a hatchery or for home hatching the best chance for improvement is through proper methods of feeding and management. The hen must be well supplied with vitamins. Vitamins A, B, D, E, and G are all necessary in the hen's ration if she is to lay eggs that will hatch. Vitamins B and E are likely to be present in ample quantities in nearly any ration. It is vitamins A, D, and G that are most often lacking. This deficiency is responsible for poor hatches. While many farm flocks are not given feeds that contain enough of these vitamins to make good hatching eggs, yet each of them can be supplied without much trouble or expense.

A good source of vitamin A is yellow corn. Alfalfa meal of good green color, or other green hay meals, as well as cabbage and similar green feeds, provides liberal quantities of vitamin A. Supplying reasonable quantities of these feeds will insure ample amounts of vitamin A in the eggs for hatching purposes. There are many other feeds which contain some vitamin A, but among the common farm feeds these are the most important and economical ones.

Poultry Helps

The pullet's egg may be small at first, but it represents a day's work for the pullet. Size of egg is very likely to increase with age, so too much should not be expected of the flappers at first.

• • •

Don't overcrowd the laying houses. Three and one-half to four square feet per bird is required to properly house the laying bird. Each hen will need seven to eight lineal inches on the roosting pole.

• • •

In Missouri tests it was found that burning lights in the poultry house all night increased winter egg production.

A total of 216,000 eggs are needed for breakfasts of the inmates of Northeastern Federal penitentiary, Lewisburg, Pa., for a year.

A hen requires almost half a pound of feed to produce one egg. At least this is the average feed requirements for six breeds in the 1933 western and central New York laying tests.

Store eggs in cool places, where the temperature does not get above 70 degrees, nor down to freezing.

Hens do not respond to careless management, irregular feeding methods, poor rations, or uncomfortable houses.

• • •

There is no denying that constitutional vigor in a flock is the keynote and most important factor in success. If one loses sight of this self-evident truth, disaster is sure to come.

Rose Saves Seeds From Birds

Farmers of the Hawke's Bay district of New Zealand stopped a plague of birds, which stole grain seed as fast as it was planted, by putting in a regular crop, then watering on the ground poisoned seed, the birds refusing to touch bird or seed.

Rustlers Active Again in Arizona

Nogales, Ariz.—Cattle rustlers, scourge of western ranchers, are reported active in Santa Cruz county of Arizona.

Instead of "stringing up" the rustlers to the nearest tree the cattlemen are considering asking a cattleman in another county to act as a mediator and persuade cattle thieves to abandon the practice.

The rustlers are said to receive $5 for each "extra calf" they bring in off the range.

STEPMOTHER LOCKS GIRL, 13, IN ATTIC

Kept in Vermin-Infested Garret for Ten Months.

Quebec.—Locked in a vermin-infested attic for ten months, fed nothing but bread and water—and little of that—Marie Claire Morin, thirteen-year-old deaf-mute, is now gamboling happily at her grandfather's home. Her father and stepmother are serving prison terms of a year each after pleading guilty of cruelty charges in Beauce county, Quebec, Canada.

For the past year the only glimpse of the outside world that the girl had was from a small window in the garret she knew as home. She had three boards as a bed and when overcome by hunger would gnaw away at the boards, so much so that they were scarred by toothmarks when police broke into the house and removed the youngster.

When she was freed the child weighed only 46 pounds, with atrophied muscles, contracted heart and liver, and various other disorders.

Her stepmother, Morin's third wife, said the reason the girl was shut up was because she persisted in breaking things when she was allowed to run around.

Before locking the girl in the attic last autumn the stepmother staked her out in the field with one end of a rope tied around a leg and the other to a stake, as a horse or cow would be staked out.

Police Fail to See Joke, Felon Commits Suicide

Buenos Aires.—The inability of the Argentine police to appreciate a joke so disgusted the joker that, without more ado, he hanged himself in his cell with a rope made of his undershirt.

Baltasar Sayos, a dyed in the wool delinquent with a picturesque record for ingenuity in crime, was under arrest again on a charge of counterfeiting the currency. He drew the attention of his captors to the fact that, scrutinized carefully, his notes would be found to bear the nation's promise to give the bearer "mil Besos" (a thousand kisses) instead of the customary "mil pesos (one thousand Pesos) and therefore were not forgeries but "d—n good jokes."

Told that, anyway, his efforts to dispose of his little jokes for ready cash and to offer them as security for good behavior entitled him to a term in the local Sing Sing, Baltasar's rollicking good humor left him and the comedy of the situation became converted into tragedy.

War Memorial Beacon Is Death Trap for Birds

North Adams, Mass.—When Massachusetts dedicated its World war memorial on top of Mount Greylock last June, the reservation officials decided that the beacon on top was to be kept lighted throughout the night. No thought was given to the possibility that it might serve as a death trap for night migrating birds. But recently the light was ordered extinguished. Over 600 birds of various descriptions had crashed into the light shaft and were found dead at the base of the memorial. The light beams are so powerful that they confused the birds.

He Trusted Honest Face; Is Paid After Two Years

Parsons, W. Va.—His belief in a man's honesty was justified recently for L. E. Gregg.

On a bitter cold day two years ago a shabby stranger with wornout shoes entered a shoe store and asked Gregg if he would trust him for a pair of shoes. The man said he would pay as soon as he got work. Gregg gave him the shoes and forgot about it. Recently he received a letter from Detroit inclosing a money order and stating that the writer had at last found a job.

John J. Bott Is Named Deputy Clerk

John J. Bott of 66 Andrew street has been appointed deputy clerk of the board of supervisors to succeed James H. Hester of Peekskill, who served under Clerk Harry R. DeWitt. Mr. Bott was assistant to City Treasurer James H. Betts until Mr. Betts was appointed manager of the Albany office of the Home Loan Corporation. At that time Mr. Bott was appointed by Mayor Eugene B. Carey to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Betts as city treasurer.

Mr. Bott, who is a graduate of Kingston High School and also a graduate of the accounting department of New York University, has assumed his new duties as assistant to John Rippert of Ellenville, clerk of the board of supervisors. The deputy clerk's salary is $1,400 per year.

A. D. RELYEA PRESIDENT OF CRAFTSMEN'S CLUB

Monday evening at the lodge rooms on Wall street the Craftsman's Club of Kingston Lodge No. 10, F. & A. M. held its annual election of officers.

A. D. Relyea was named president, H. V. Clayton, vice-president; A. J. Keator, secretary and treasurer; Herbert E. Thomas, chairman of the relief committee.

A report was read which showed the club to be in good financial condition.

At the close of the meeting strawberry shortcake and coffee were served.

Cables Across Atlantic

The first attempt to lay a cable across the Atlantic in 1857 ended in failure when the cable broke at a depth of 2,000 fathoms. In August, 1858, a cable was successfully laid between Valentia, Ireland, and Heart's Content, Newfoundland. There are twenty-one cables across the Atlantic between North America and Europe. The outside diameter of the ordinary deep-sea type of cable is about one inch, and the weight in the air about two tons per nautical mile. The shore end types run as large as three and one-half inches in diameter and weigh as much as thirty tons per nautical mile.

Annual Meeting Date Of Fish and Game Group

Notices have been sent out calling the annual meeting of the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association for Wednesday evening, January 10, the meeting to be held in the [illegible] room of the court house, Kingston, beginning at eight o'clock promptly.

The attendance at these meetings has been steadily on the increase for several years and it is hoped and expected that the attendance at the coming meeting will be very large as there are a number of matters of primary importance to local sportsmen to come before this meeting for action, beside regular routine business which will include the election of officers for 1934.

This meeting is open to any and all interested sportsmen whether or not they are members of the Ulster County Association and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone interested to attend and learn at first hand of the work being carried on in this vicinity by this organization for the benefit of sportsmen.

The Ulster County Association does not own or control an acre of posted land nor a foot of posted water, all their efforts in the field of fish and game stocking being in open territory, where any licensed sportsman gains the benefit whether he is a member of the association.

Following the business session there will be a showing of motion pictures through the courtesy of Benjamin Winne, some of these films showing actual field activities of local fish and game stocking crews in action during the season just ended; and others being professional films of especial interest to sportsmen.

Restoration of Heart Action

Restoration of heart action by means of an electrified needle has been found possible in development of an apparatus called "the artificial pacemaker."

LIVE LION BELIES WILD YARN WHEN TAKEN TO COURT

Publicity About His Escape Causes Panic in English Community.

London.—"Let the lion be brought before the court," commanded the magistrate of the Chichester Police court, in West Sussex, England, and immediately between two policemen there was ushered in a once proud monarch of the African jungle. He was collared and chained. He seated himself on his haunches, yawned, and then stretched out and went to sleep. His custodians, each holding an end of the chain, seated themselves in chairs at his side.

The case was formulated against four men who were accused of conspiring "to commit a public mischief" and was prosecuted by the West Sussex police. The alleged conspiracy was set forth in the summons to the effect that the four defendants—Batlin, proprietor of amusement fairs; Jose, his manager; Proctor, a publicity man, and Wensley, a farmer—had by means of certain false statements induced the credulous but affrighted public to believe that a lion, known as Rex, had escaped from a circus van near Bognor Regis, killed and mutilated a sheep, and was spreading terror in the countryside.

Opens Lion's Mouth.

Before the case was dismissed with a warning to the four "conspirators," the following evidence had been presented:

Rex was first called to the stand, but as he declined to budge, the prosecutor approached him, daringly opened the lion's mouth, and said:

"Here is evidence tending to disprove the allegation against this noble animal; he did not slay the sheep. Had he desired to do so he could not have performed the act. As your lordship will observe, he has no teeth. He would not hurt a kitten."

There remained, however, the news bulletin sent to London by Proctor. It was headed "Lion Hunt by Moonlight; Escaped From Lorry; Still at Large; From Our Special Correspondent."

The paper which published it had a story on the following day headed: "Great Lion Hunt; Holiday-Makers Armed With Rifles."

The prosecutor read a report that "Rex, the forest-bred Nairobi lion," was captured in a field at Pagham after being at large for 38 hours.

Because of these reports, continued the prosecutor, schools were closed, houses barricaded and little children were found crying in the streets. He proceeded to read a statement by the farmer Wensley.

Plant Slain Sheep.

On the eve of the alleged escape of Rex, Proctor approached him and asked if he had an old sheep that was no good.

"I said, 'Yes, I have got plenty,'" the statement continued.

"'Gave me 30 shillings for it.' He said, 'Will you get him killed for me and throw him in the hedge, as there is a lion loose. Cut it about as though it had been mauled.'

"I got the shepherd to kill the sheep and leave it in the field for a few hours. . . . He killed it in a proper manner, and there was no cruelty."

"That, I think," continued the prosecutor, "will convince your lordship that the witness can in no way be considered particeps criminis, particularly as one of our constables found him quietly reposing in his cage behind a screen at the very moment that the libels against him were being published in London.

"Furthermore, as I have been assured by the defendants that they have no desire to attempt to controvert the evidence I have presented, I recommend them to the mercy of the court."

Farmer in Need of $100; Roosevelt Can't Spare It

Springfield, Mo.—President Roosevelt cannot spare the farmer the $100 he wanted to borrow. The farmer wrote to Mr. Roosevelt:

"dear m. roosevelt, president.

"I that I would rite a litle leter and let you know that I am shore hard up.

"I am oful har up but I am still strong for you—if I had a litle helup I could get along, wont you please send mee 100 dollars I will shore pay it back. please rite me at once as I am shore hard up. I shore did work for you in the election and done you a lot of good. please send me the 100 dollars as soon as you can. I am shore hard up."

A secretary to the President wrote the farmer that the President appreciated his support, but that the President did not have the $100 to spare right now.

The farmer's letter, with a notation that his case be investigated and relief extended, was forwarded from Washington to relief officials here.

Watchman Naps as Thief Takes Cash Under Head

Syracuse, N. Y.—A prize for sound sleeping ought to go to William McClements, a night watchman.

To make sure nothing would happen to the cash register he was supposed to guard, he rested his head on the money machine as he decided to take a nap during the early hours of a brisk autumn day. He woke up an hour later. His head had been moved. The cash register, which contained $4, had been stolen.

The Dorcas Society will have a pot luck supper in the Reformed Church house at 6:30 Thursday evening. After supper the annual election of officers will be held. Every member is urged to be present.

The January meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the school at 8 o'clock Friday evening. This is Father's night and it is hoped there will be a large attendance of fathers. The Rev. J. Thoburn Legg will be the speaker. The public is invited. There will be refreshments.

The auditing committee of Hope Temple, No. 80, Pythian Sisters, will meet at the home of Mrs. Edith Van Vliet at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Lillian Smith who is spending the week with relatives in Kingston, was a recent visitor of friends in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jordan and Paul Jordan were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Short in Kingston.

The late town law provides for the election of five fire commissioners instead of three as before. The commissioners of the Port Ewen fire district elected at a meeting of the district held in November last assumed office on January 1. Those elected were Henry E. McKenzie, John T. Groves, Chauncey Freer, Reginald H. Van Leuven and Donald Decker. At the first meeting an organization was completed by the election of Henry E. McKenzie as president, John T. Groves, secretary; Wallace H. Mabie, treasurer.

At a meeting of Hope Lodge, No. 65, K. of P., held at its lodge rooms on Friday evening, January 5, the officers for the ensuing year consisting of Charles Schweigel, c. c.; Samuel Tinney, v. c.; Henry E. McKenzie, prelate; Arthur Hallie, m. of w.; Wallace Mabie, k. of r. and s.; Raymond Howe, m. of f.; Harry C. Jump, m. of e; William Schweigel, m. at s; W. M. Stephenson, i. g. and Charles W. Howe, o. g., were installed in their respective offices by Deputy Grand Chancellor Edward G. West of Phoenicia. The service was very impressive and the deputy accompanied by his staff of 10, all members of Shandaken Lodge, contributed to the impressiveness of the ceremonies. Pythians from Saugerties, Kingston, Highland and Phoenicia were present and added to the enthusiasm. After the installation of officers, refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

BEARSVILLE I. O. O. F. LODGE HOLDS ANNUAL INSTALLATION

Bearsville, Jan. 9.—On Friday evening, January 5, a semi-public installation of officers was held by Bearsville Lodge No. 533, I. O. O. F. District Deputy Grand Master Jacob Donovan and staff, of Highland, did the work in a very creditable manner before a deeply interested and attentive audience of invited guests.

The following officers were installed: Noble grand, LaMonte V. Simpkins; vice grand, Frielan Van De Bogart; recording secretary, Charles R. Tiller; financial secretary, George Reynolds; treasurer, R. J. Lapo; warden, John Peper; conductor, George E. Wilbur; chaplain, John Cochrane; R. S. S., Eugene Hoyt; L. S. S., Ralph Eighmey; R. S. N. G., Shaffer Vredenburg; L. S. N. G., Victor N. Lasher; R. S. V. G., Luther Van DeBogart; L. S. V. G., Courtney Rodney; I. G., Louis Hommel; O. G., Harold Shultis.

At the close of the installation ceremony the deputy and the members of his staff entertained the audience by short speeches interspersed with jokes and stories, the deputy calling to the attention of the members the occasion of the visit of Grand Master John L. LeSeur, to the district which will be held in the Governor Clinton Hotel at Kingston on January 31. Mrs. L. V. Simpkins and Shaffer Vredenberg entertained the company with a duet beautifully rendered and Mrs. Simpkins also sang several solos. They were accompanied by Mrs. John Cochrane at the piano. The guests were then invited down stairs to the banquet room where a piping hot oyster supper awaited them. Much credit is due the new noble grand who so successfully planned the evening's program and all feel assured of a very successful term for the lodge under his leadership.

Reverting to the custom of pioneer days, numerous North Carolina farmers are curing cow hides and making their own shoes at home.

BLUE SUNOCO
THE ONLY TRUE BLUE

the streamlined acting motor fuel for all cars!

Now that "streamlining" is here with increased speed and economy, motorists want a motor fuel in step with the times, not back in the "flying machine" and "horseless carriage" age.

That is why Blue Sunoco Motor Fuel has kept pace with the progress that airplane and automobile engineers are making.

Just as these engineers have improved performance by modern streamline designing, which eliminates wind-resisting surfaces and vacuum drag —thieves of power and speed— . . . so Sun Oil Engineers have designed Blue Sunoco to eliminate those undesirable parts of petroleum which retard swift acceleration, high speed and knockless power.

Therefore, Blue Sunoco is today's streamlined acting motor fuel.
